M'CULLOCH CHARGED WITH BURGLARY; RESIGNS, GIVES BOY Germans Agree to Sign Unconditionally

FINAL NOTE A PROTEST; CEREMONY WEDNESDAY

Acceptance of Conditions of Peace Comes After the Council of Three Refuses 48 Hours' Extension of Time and After Earlier Letters Make Reservations.

"ACCEPTING UNDER DURESS," SAYS BAUER

Last Communication Maintains That Terms Constitute a Peace of Violence—Italians Now in Paris Will Sign for Italy.

By the Associated Press. PARIS, June 23.—The German Government at Weimar has formally communicated its willingness to sign the peace terms unconditionally, it was announced by the French Foreign Office this afternoon.

The German note of acceptance, it is said, is couched in such language that it maintains the German position that the peace conditions are "a peace of violence."

The day and hour for the formal signing of the treaty is uncertain. The signing possibly may take place Tuesday, but more likely Wednesday.

The Italian delegates at present in Paris have been authorized to sign the treaty on behalf of Italy. This announcement removed one question which it was feared might delay the signing.

Germany earlier in the day requested an additional 48 hours within which to make known its decision relative to the signing of the peace treaty without the reservations requested by the Entente. The Council of Three flatly refused the request.

The request for additional time pleaded that the change in the Government and the generally disturbed conditions made it difficult to complete the arrangements.

Text of German Refusal. The decision to refuse the request was reached after a discussion lasting less than an hour. The German note read as follows:

"To His Excellency, The President of the Peace Conference, Mr. Clemenceau:

GERMAN WARSHIPS AT KIEL REPORTED SUNK BY CREWS

Twelve Vessels Besides Destroyers Said to Have Gone Down There and at Other Ports.

By the Associated Press. WELMAR, Sunday, June 22.—The German warships which were not surrendered to the allies and which have been anchored off Kiel, Wilhelmshaven and other points have been sunk by German sailors manning them, according to a report received here from a reliable authority.

According to the reports there were 12 German war vessels besides destroyers which were in German waters, not having been turned over to the Entente under the armistice provisions.

SINKING OF GERMAN SHIPS WILL NOT AFFECT TREATY

Considerable Feeling Among French, May Spread to Italians—No Regret in British-American Circles.

By the Associated Press. PARIS, June 23.—The sinking of the German warships by their crews, it was apparent today, does not affect the general situation regarding peace with Germany. There is no indication that the act of the Germans will enter into the proceedings at the present stage, or cause a reopening of the negotiations.

While the act is generally denounced as a violation of the armistice technically, it is not actually in British and American circles no marked regret is expressed.

In French quarters, however, there is understood to be considerable feeling, which, it is expected, will reflect itself in Italian circles. France and Italy have been opposing the German fleet, which was favored supposedly by the Americans and the British.

WILSON PREPARES TO SAIL

President May Leave Paris Wednesday, Barring Unexpected.

By the Associated Press. PARIS, June 23.—The activities noted today at the Paris residence of President Wilson appeared to indicate that preparations were being made for the President's departure for home.

It seemed probable that the President would leave Paris Wednesday, barring the unexpected.

During the first five months of 1919, the Post-Dispatch printed 10,800 Musical "Wants"—191 more than the FOUR other St. Louis newspapers combined.

TWO BOYS DROWN; FLOODS IN COUNTY DO BIG DAMAGE

Heavy Rain Sends River des Peres and Other Streams Out of Banks, Resulting in Heavy Loss.

WATER IN STREETS, BUILDINGS FLOODED

Bridges Washed Away, Crops Damaged and Roads Suffer Heavily in many Places From Water.

Two boys were drowned today after the River des Peres and other small streams in St. Louis County and at the western edge of the city had overflowed their banks as a result of the unusually heavy rain at 7 a. m.

The banks of the streams were unable to carry away the water. Basements and fields were flooded. A wagon bridge over the River des Peres, just west of De Baliviere avenue and near the Rock Island tracks, was washed away.

The boys drowned were William Duncan, 8 years old, son of Dr. Charles E. Duncan of Flora, Ill., and Charles T. Cullom, 12 years old, whose parents reside at Canterbury and Glendale avenues, Maplewood.

Carried by Swift Current. The Duncan boy, who had been visiting at the home of his grandmother, Mrs. Mary E. Duncan, 6044 McPherson avenue, was playing with other children near the bank of the River des Peres at the point where the stream enters Forest Park south of Pershing avenue and the University car line viaduct. The creek, at that point, usually about a foot in depth, had run over the top of its 20-foot embankments. Approaching the edge of the bank, the boy jokingly remarked that he was going to take a swim. The earth, loosened by the rain and the swelling of the stream, gave way beneath him and he was carried away by a swift current.

The ship will carry provisions from Morris & Co. and the trip by way of the Great Lakes, Montreal and the Atlantic is expected to require three weeks. The Shipping Board is turning out steel steamers here at the rate of one every 10 days, and these will follow the Lake Grandby on the route to Liverpool.

AIR MAIL FROM HERE IN AUTUMN

Department, Extending Service, Convinced by the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—As a result of successful operation of the aerial mail service between Chicago and Cleveland, the post office department, it was announced, is considering extension in the fall of the service from Chicago to Omaha, which would mean a total reduction in train mail time between the Atlantic and Pacific coasts of approximately 24 hours.

It also is planned to connect St. Louis with the east by an air mail route.

PARIS WILL CELEBRATE JULY 4

SAYS "EFFICIENCY BURGLAR" CHEATED HIM IN DEAL

Tailor Asserts He Paid for Return of Clothing and Goods, but Robber Retained Part of Loot.

FIRST TRADE IN MEN'S APPAREL

Telephone Call Asked for $250; Merchant Offered $150, and Got Man to "Split Difference at $175."

Men's clothing apparently is the latest addition to the "efficiency burglars' line, which had previously been limited almost entirely to jewelry and art objects. Evidence as to this further step forward in the expansion of the "business," already grown to considerable dimensions, is the story told the police by Samuel Cohen of Cohen Bros. Tailoring Goods Co., 3501 North Market street, who complained that he paid $175 for the return of $1166 worth of clothing and fabric and was cheated to the extent of two suits, nine pairs of trousers and five bolts of cloth.

Cohen did not tell the police anything about his dealings with the robbers until after the discovery that the bundles were "short." Now, he says, he wants to see the thieves arrested.

"I'm a robber threatened him. The goods were taken from the tailoring establishment last Wednesday morning. That evening, about 7:30 o'clock, Cohen says, his telephone rang. He answered it and the following conversation ensued:

"That you, Cohen?"
"It's me."
"Well, I know where your stuff is, and I can get it for you."
"How much?" asked Cohen.
"I'll cost you just 250 bones, and if you tell the police I'll blow your d— head off," said the "business-like" response.

"I don't want my d— head blown off, but I can't raise $250," rejoined Cohen. And he hung up. Half an hour later the telephone rang again. Cohen answered. "That you, Cohen?"
"It's me," said Cohen.
"Well, we've talked it over, and we'll split the difference with you," said the burglar's representative, weakening.

"Now you're talking business," said Cohen. "You want $250, and I want to give $150. We'll split the difference, and make it $175. What do you say?" Whatever it was, the burglar said it under his breath, then he spoke up:

"We'll meet you at Webster and Easton streets at 9 o'clock," he said. "Have the dough on you, and don't tell the cops. If you do, you'll have bad luck."
"Depend on me," said Cohen. "Business is business." And he hung up.

A large green touring car, containing two men, drove up to the corner a few minutes after Cohen arrived with the money in his pocket. All three had revolvers, he said. "Where's the money?" one demanded.

"Where's the goods?" parried Cohen. The first speaker muttered something to one of the others, and a large bundle was lifted up from the tonneau. Cohen handed over the $175, and the man almost knocked Cohen down with the bundle, as the machine started off.

Cohen took it home. He counted up the contents, and he made an inventory Thursday. On Friday he complained to the police that the thieves had "held out" on him. Those who had followed with interest the "efficiency burglars' business."

Wells' Statement Accepting Resignations of U. R. Officials; McCulloch's Letter to Receiver

THE text of Receiver Wells' statement, accepting the resignations of Richard McCulloch and Bruce Cameron as officials of the United Railways and the text of McCulloch's resignation, follow:

RECEIVER WELLS: I have accepted the resignations of Mr. McCulloch and Mr. Cameron, not because I have prejudged the charges made against them, but merely because the iteration of these charges has impaired the efficiency of these gentlemen to perform their respective functions. The determination of the truth or falsity of these charges must rest with the proper judicial forum.

At the same time the receiver added:

"I have just one thing to say in connection with this statement. The public must realize that it is no easy task to operate a great utility of this kind. It is the best desire and endeavor of the receiver to conserve the interests of the traveling public, the employees and the owners of the property. I earnestly solicit from the public its assistance in making the tasks temporarily conferred on me as easy as possible, through the co-operation of the people of St. Louis."

"Dear Sir: In order not to embarrass you in your duties as receiver, in view of the accusations in connection with the theft of the referendum petitions, which have been made against me, I am handing you my resignation as manager."

"As I have heretofore publicly stated, the accusation that I had any part in this theft, or any knowledge of it, is absolutely false."

"I wish to thank you for the uniform courtesy with which you have treated me. I leave the service of the United Railways with regret, but with the kindest feeling toward you and the personnel of the company."

"Very truly yours,
"RICHARD McCULLOCH."

A. F. L. GETS BEHIND THE 44-HOUR WEEK

Convention at Atlantic City Also Indorses the Commercial Telegraphers' Strike.

By the Associated Press. ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 23.—Indorsement of the Commercial Telegraphers' strike was unanimously voted today by the American Federation of Labor.

The convention also went on record in favor of a 44-hour week for labor generally and directed the executive council to work for that end. A resolution adopted on the subject of the wire strike directed the appointment by President Tompkins of a committee to go to Washington to confer with Postmaster-General Burleson and ask that concessions recently granted telephone and electrical workers be extended to include employees of the telegraph companies under Government control. Such extension, it was declared, would result in the ending of the strike.

Other resolutions adopted protested against the employment of ex-politicians in uniform as policemen in the Toledo (O.) strike; advocated payment by railroad companies for all improvements put upon their lines during Government control; and asked the removal of regulations prohibiting railroad employees from engaging in politics, on the ground that Director-General Hines' order on the subject "inspired Americans of rights guaranteed by their citizenship."

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, June 23.—House and Senate conferees today approved the rider on the agricultural appropriation bill providing for repeal of the daylight saving law next Oct. 26. PLEADS NOT GUILTY; HIS HEARING SET FOR JULY 7

Letter to Receiver States He Withdraws Because of Charges Made Against Him, but Repeats Declaration of Innocence—Cameron Also Quits.

GRAND JURY WILL HEAR ACCUSATIONS

Former U. R. Agents Who Made Charges of Complicity in Referendum Petitions Theft Against President of Company Will Be Called Tomorrow.

An information charging Richard McCulloch, president of the United Railways Co., with burglary in the second degree and larceny, was issued at 10:30 this morning by Circuit Attorney McDaniell, who announced that he expected his action to be followed by an indictment. The issuance of the information resulted from the testimony given last week before Special Master Lamm, tending to connect McCulloch with the burglary and theft of United Railways franchises referendum petitions, June 15, 1918.

McCulloch appeared at 11:30 in Judge Krueger's division of the Court of Criminal Correction, was arraigned, waived the reading of the text of the information, and pleaded not guilty. His preliminary hearing, in the same court was set for July 7. His bond, in the sum of $2500, was signed by Robert W. Morrissey of 5515 Maple avenue. McCulloch's attorney, John M. Goodwin, hurried him out of the building as soon as the formality was concluded.

A warrant for McCulloch's arrest had been prepared by the clerk of the court, but his appearance in court obviated the necessity of a formal arrest.

McCulloch handed his resignation as manager of operation to Rolla Wells, receiver of the company, at 9:40 a. m. His letter of resignation stated that he was withdrawing because of the charges of complicity in the referendum theft, but repeated his former declaration that these charges were untrue.

Successors Not Appointed. Bruce Cameron, Superintendent of Transportation, who has been under indictment on the same charge since last summer, also sent his resignation to Wells this morning. Wells accepted both resignations, but made no announcement as to his plans for the appointment of successors to McCulloch and Cameron.

It was said at United Railways headquarters that McCulloch's duties would probably fall to Edwin D. Smith, chief engineer. Harry Russell, who was Cameron's assistant, took up Cameron's duties temporarily.

McCulloch's resignation as manager does not mean his withdrawal from the office of president, according to Thomas E. Francis, general attorney for the company. McCulloch will continue to be president of the corporation and director, but will have no control while the receivership continues, and will receive no salary. His salary as manager, since the receiver took charge April 12, has been at the former rate, $25,000 a year. Cameron's salary is $3000. Smith was appointed by Wells as president of the Employees' Mutual Benefit Association, a building and loan agency conducted under company auspices, to succeed McCulloch, who withdrew as president of the association.

Action by Grand Jury Expected. Circuit Attorney McDaniell, before issuing the information against McCulloch, announced that he would call before the grand jury, beginning at 2 p. m. tomorrow, the chief witnesses who testified before Special Master Lamm last Thursday and Friday, and whose testimony caused a general demand for further action.

PROTEST USELESS, SAYS BAUER, IN OUTLINING STAND BEFORE ASSEMBLY

New German Chancellor Declares Government Will Yield to Force and Sign Treaty to Save Country From Chaos and Starvation.

POINTS TO CHANCE OF OBTAINING REVISION

Asserts Conditions Form a Peace of Violence and Declines Responsibility for Consequences That May Follow Unfulfillment.

WEIMAR, Sunday, June 22.—Dr. Haniel von Haimhausen, a member of the German peace delegation, who was asked to conduct peace arrangements at Versailles, has notified the government he will not sign the allied terms.

It was officially announced today that Germany will sign the peace treaty.

New Chancellor's Speech.

In announcing the decision of the government to sign the peace terms, Premier Bauer said before the National Assembly today:

"The allied and associated Powers cannot expect the German people to agree from inner conviction to a peace instrument whereby, without the populations being consulted, living members are severed from the German Empire, German sovereignty permanently violated and unbearable economic and financial burdens imposed upon the German people.

"The distress of the land and people has brought us together. I say we are not here to stand for the interests of our own party, and still less to satisfy our ambitions.

"We are here from the sense of duty to save that which is salvageable."

Having expressed regret for the action of the democrats, Herr Bauer formally presented the new Ministers and announced that the Cabinet's general program would remain identical to that of the Scheidemann ministry.

Coming to the question of signing the treaty or not, Herr Bauer said:

"The Imperial Government only too well understands that it faces the enemy's terms. Exalted indignation carries away individuals and the community and tries to find vent, but if on assuming my heavy office I may make a request it is this, do not allow the question of acceptance or rejection to become a party matter. Do not misjudge the advocates of rejection as chauvinistic, pursuing selfish aims or the advocates of acceptance under dire necessity as cowards or weaklings, void of the national sense of justice.

"On both sides are weighty resolutions which no responsible man can overlook. A decision must be taken. The time for reflection is past. The hour for action has arrived and in it each of you bears a responsibility.

"Only One Justification.

"The Imperial Government is conscious that despite all manifestations of confidence it can in the eyes of the nation and history only have one real justification, namely, that it has taken a decision after the examination of the facts and a responsibility without an eye on party feelings.

Declaring that by signing the treaty under reserve the Government yielded to force in order to spare suffering Germany from a new war and disruption of national unity by further occupation, starvation for the women and children and an unmerciful longer retention of German prisoners, Herr Bauer continued:

"At this hour of life and death, under the menace of invasion, for the last time I raise in free Germany protest against this treaty of violence and destruction. I protest against this mockery of self-determination, this enslavement of the German people, this new menace to the peace of the world, under the mask of a treaty of peace. No signing can enable this to be done. This treaty does not lose its annihilating character by alterations in details. Protesting against it is useless and at the risk of a new crisis within 48 hours.

Text of German Note Agreeing to Sign Treaty With Reservations as to Guilt and Kaiser

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, June 22.—The German note in which Germany agrees to sign the treaty with two reservations was received by the president of the peace conference at 5 o'clock yesterday evening. The note of the allies, through the Council of Four, was transmitted to the German plenipotentiaries at Versailles.

The full text of the German note shows that while but two reservations were made, the Germans asked for the insertion in the treaty of a clause providing that within two years that document should be submitted to the council of the league of nations for reconsideration of that portion of the treaty which, as the Germans phrased it, impair the right to self-determination of the German people. Similar reconsideration of that portion "whereby the free economic development of Germany on a footing of equal rights is denied," also was provided for in this suggested clause.

The German note follows, dated Versailles, June 22, and addressed to M. Clemenceau, president of the Imperial Ministry of Foreign Affairs has instructed me to communicate the following to your excellency:

"The government of the German republic has from the moment when the peace conditions of the allied and associated Governments were made known to it let no doubt exist as to the fact that the Government in harmony with the whole German people, must regard these conditions as being in sharp contradiction to the principle which was accepted by the allied and associated Powers, on the one hand, and Germany, on the other, as being binding in accordance with the laws of the peace treaty."

"Far-reaching counter-proposals of the German delegation have only in certain points received your acceptance. The concessions made only reduced the severity of the conditions in a small degree.

"The allied and associated Governments have, in an ultimatum which expires on June 23, confronted the Government of the German republic with the decision either to sign the treaty of peace presented by them or refuse to sign. In the latter case a completely defensive people has been threatened with the forcible imposition of the conditions of peace already presented and with the increase of heavy burdens.

"The German people does not wish for the resumption of the bloody war. It honestly wishes for a lasting peace which is salvageable. I say we are not here to stand for the interests of our own party, and still less to satisfy our ambitions.

"We are here from the sense of duty to save that which is salvageable."

Having expressed regret for the action of the democrats, Herr Bauer formally presented the new Ministers and announced that the Cabinet's general program would remain identical to that of the Scheidemann ministry.

Coming to the question of signing the treaty or not, Herr Bauer said:

"The Imperial Government is conscious that despite all manifestations of confidence it can in the eyes of the nation and history only have one real justification, namely, that it has taken a decision after the examination of the facts and a responsibility without an eye on party feelings.

Declaring that by signing the treaty under reserve the Government yielded to force in order to spare suffering Germany from a new war and disruption of national unity by further occupation, starvation for the women and children and an unmerciful longer retention of German prisoners, Herr Bauer continued:

"At this hour of life and death, under the menace of invasion, for the last time I raise in free Germany protest against this treaty of violence and destruction. I protest against this mockery of self-determination, this enslavement of the German people, this new menace to the peace of the world, under the mask of a treaty of peace. No signing can enable this to be done. This treaty does not lose its annihilating character by alterations in details. Protesting against it is useless and at the risk of a new crisis within 48 hours.

"Our power of resistance is broken and there is no means of averting this treaty. The treaty itself, however, does give us a handle which we cannot allow to be wrested from us, namely, the Entente's solemn promise of June 26, 1919, that the treaty can be revised from time to time and adapted to new conditions. That is one of the few words in the treaty breathing the real spirit of peace."

"The German people, by concluding this treaty, has concluded by expressing its faith in the German people and their final realization of a better future. He said they were faced with years of labor for the

of the populations concerned; whereby the dignity of the German state is to be permanently impaired and whereby unendurable economic and financial burdens are to be laid upon the German people.

Attitude of the People.

"The German Government has received passionate expressions of opinion from the population in which they protest against the signing away of all the colonial possessions of Germany and the reasons given therefor, which permanently deny to Germany fitness for colonial activities. The impudently held evidence in the left wing of the Hall of Mirrors, while the right wing will be occupied by about the same number of press representatives. Sixty seats have been allotted to the French press.

There will be room for 400 invited persons at the historic session. They will be given places in the left wing of the Hall of Mirrors, while the right wing will be occupied by about the same number of press representatives. Sixty seats have been allotted to the French press.

The program of arrangements as far as they have been settled were submitted to Premier Clemenceau yesterday.

The court of honor has been cleared of captured guns. Three regiments of infantry and five of cavalry will be on duty at the time of the signing of the treaty. Republican guards in gala uniforms will render the honors. They will be stationed on the ground and staircase by which the plenipotentiaries entered the hall.

According to the Havas Agency, diplomatic relations with Germany will not be resumed immediately on the signing of the treaty, but only after its ratification. This also applies to the admission of German subjects into France.

Fronting M. Clemenceau's presidential chair will be placed a small table on which the diplomatic instruments will be laid. It will be to this table that each representative is called in alphabetical order to sign his name to the treaty and affix to it his Government seal. As there are 100 delegates, the ceremony is expected to take at least 90 minutes.

The final preparations for the signing of the treaty will be discussed at a meeting at the prefecture here today.

Perfect of Police Raux of Paris has been assigned to take charge of the maintenance of order in Versailles. He will have a large force of gendarmes at his disposal in addition to the troops in order to control the crowds.

Only French representatives will be entrusted with the arrangements for the function, the allied and associated plenipotentiaries being regarded as the guests of France.

The single question raised by the resolution is as to whether the league should receive further consideration by the people before the Senate advises its inclusion in the treaty. This can be done without delay, the work of the department was done, but did go to bed with a conscience, knowing I had done the very best I knew how to do and with the resolution that tomorrow I would improve the service of my department in every way possible.

"I want to repeat I had no connection with the referendum petitions in any way, and future developments will prove this statement true."

Wants Opinion Reserved.

"May I ask you, the public which you represent, as well as the stockholders of the company, to reserve your opinion on this matter until the unfortunate muddle has been cleared up or my innocence established in the courts?"

"I have dealt honestly with every one of the many problems coming before my department and in doing so have no doubt made some enemies. My work has necessarily kept me on the job all of the time and Mrs. Cameron has passed through a year of unjust and unfair criticism leveled at me, but her faith supports her, as she knows it will come out all right in the end."

At any time you wish to consult with me I am at your service.

"Yours very truly,"

"BRUCE CAMERON,"

Superintendent of Transportation.

The text of Bruce Cameron's resignation follows:

"Honorable Rolla Wells, receiver United Railways Co.,

Dear Sir:—In July, 1918, immediately after the receipt of my resignation which indicated me, I directed a letter to the Board of Directors of the United Railways Co., telling them I had no connection whatever with the work of my department and was, therefore, not responsible for the same, and did not see how I could be indicted upon the testimony of a man named Jackson, who confessed that he did the deed himself, and that I did not wish to endeavor to be involved in any way whatever, and if they thought it was best for the railways company for me to discontinue my services with the company, to consider that as my resignation, effective at their pleasure.

"The board did not accept the resignation and I have been continued superintendent of transportation ever since. Recent developments have caused a great deal of unpleasant newspaper comment, and I am quite sure you are in an unenviable position. I do not wish to embarrass you in the least and you may consider this as my resignation as superintendent of transportation of the United Railways Co. of St. Louis, effective at your pleasure."

Fraises Men in Department.

"I was employed by this company in 1900 at the rate of $45 a month, and I have been in the employ of the company ever since, with the exception of six months during the first part of 1907.

"The duties of the head of the transportation department are manifold. It is not only a matter of instruction, train, discipline and command men who actually run the cars, as well as superintendents, supervisors, clerks, dispatchers, switchmen, car sweepers and car cleaners. In this department today we have approximately 3400 men, and they are most efficient, loyal, capable and honest body of men, and I am sure it has been my pleasure to know."

"Our cars are running on a good space. In the last 18 months we have reduced our accidents below the average as compared with the 12 other large cities of the United States. The supervisory force as well as the entire organization of the department are very efficient and the company continues to prosper."

"Personally I have given this property the very best that I had. I have worked for the company for 19 years with but two vacations, and from 15 to 24 hours each and every day. I regret very much to leave such a capable crowd, because every officer and man employed in the department has done the very best he could to provide safe and sane service in a courteous manner, and I have no doubt that the company will continue to prosper."

"I am sure that the company will continue to prosper."

"I am sure that the company will continue to prosper."

"I am sure that the company will continue to prosper."

"I am sure that the company will continue to prosper."

"I am sure that the company will continue to prosper."

"I am sure that the company will continue to prosper."

LAMM PERMITS CAPTAIN TO ADOPT THEFT TESTIMONY

Statements of Jackson, Brady and Baumhoff, at Intervenor's Hearing, Implicating McCulloch, Become Receivership Evidence.

In tentatively permitting Ephraim Caplan, attorney for John W. Seaman, whose receivership suit has been the means of bringing about the railroad change in the United Railways, to adopt the testimony of Julius Caesar Jackson, James Brady and George W. Baumhoff, offered last week in the intervention of Robert T. and Elmer A. Laughlin, both holders of evidence in chief in the Seaman case, Special Master Lamm today suggested that Jackson, Brady and Baumhoff be introduced in court for cross-examination by counsel for the defense.

Caplan said that he would endeavor to get the witnesses before the Master during the afternoon.

As is remembered, the testimony of these three witnesses implicated Richard McCulloch, president of the United Railways, in the burglary of the franchise referendum petitions to the extent that McCulloch was arrested today on a charge of burglary.

Henry S. Priest, who is appearing for defendant directors, including himself, indicated that the defense might not wait cross-examination of Baumhoff and Brady, if their evidence were admitted under the original bill, as it did when offered under an intervention. Caplan's objection to the admission of the testimony was vigorously opposed by the defense.

Master to Use "Common Sense."

To technical objections Judge Lamm replied:

"Most court practice and most law are built on common sense. I confess my knowledge of Federal practice is not wide, but I will decide this case on common sense and will admit the testimony. If I find that Federal practice is to the contrary, then I will change my mind. I am too old to be afraid of doing this."

Caplan obtained the introduction, over objections, of a statement prepared from the company's books by James Adkins, treasurer, showing that the publicly engaged in by the company had cost $97,000. This publicity was chiefly in the form of newspaper advertisements prepared by a publicity agent of the North American Co., who came to St. Louis for the purpose.

Caplan introduced as his first witness in rebuttal Joseph S. Turley, who said that he had been in the coal business for 32 years and now is coal dealer and agent of the Illinois Traction Co.

The first question concerned the practice of the United Railways in purchasing coal through Devoy & Kuhn, local dealers, and the payment to them of a commission of 5 cents a ton for all the coal purchased and consumed by the Railways. Turley stated that the practice was to buy coal from Devoy & Kuhn for delivery to the United Railways at the "highest price he could get."

He also testified that prior to 1917 he himself had sold coal to Devoy & Kuhn for delivery to the United Railways at the "highest price he could get."

He said that the quality was such that no other consumer would purchase it and that the railways used from two to five cars a day.

Caplan stated that the pertinence of this inquiry was that the railways had submitted various costs of its purchase of coal, which were based principally on the cost of its coal. He said that he hoped to show that the figures submitted to the Special Master were faulty because of an excessive price paid for a poor quality of coal.

Caplan introduced stockholders' lists showing the names of holders of stock in both the North American Co. and the United Railways Co. at the same time in 1907, just a month previous to the time when the power contracts were made.

At that time, he said, the North American owned 400,000 shares of United Railways stock and a controlling interest in the 249,000 shares which were in the voting trust, and which represented a control of 57 per cent of the United Railways stock.

Arranging at Versailles for Signing of Treaty

Famous Gallery of Mirrors Receives Final Furnishings; Room for 400 Invited Persons.

By the Associated Press.

VERSAILLES, June 23.—Arrangements already have begun to take shape at Versailles for the signing of the peace treaty. Orders have been given to have everything in readiness tomorrow, although the ceremony, according to the Havas Agency, is not likely to occur before Thursday at the earliest.

The famous Gallery of Mirrors has received its final furnishings. The carpets have been laid and the ornamental table with its eighteenth century gilt and bronze decorations has been placed in position on the dais where the plenipotentiaries will be seated.

There will be room for 400 invited persons at the historic session. They will be given places in the left wing of the Hall of Mirrors, while the right wing will be occupied by about the same number of press representatives. Sixty seats have been allotted to the French press.

The program of arrangements as far as they have been settled were submitted to Premier Clemenceau yesterday.

The court of honor has been cleared of captured guns. Three regiments of infantry and five of cavalry will be on duty at the time of the signing of the treaty. Republican guards in gala uniforms will render the honors. They will be stationed on the ground and staircase by which the plenipotentiaries entered the hall.

According to the Havas Agency, diplomatic relations with Germany will not be resumed immediately on the signing of the treaty, but only after its ratification. This also applies to the admission of German subjects into France.

Fronting M. Clemenceau's presidential chair will be placed a small table on which the diplomatic instruments will be laid. It will be to this table that each representative is called in alphabetical order to sign his name to the treaty and affix to it his Government seal. As there are 100 delegates, the ceremony is expected to take at least 90 minutes.

The final preparations for the signing of the treaty will be discussed at a meeting at the prefecture here today.

Perfect of Police Raux of Paris has been assigned to take charge of the maintenance of order in Versailles. He will have a large force of gendarmes at his disposal in addition to the troops in order to control the crowds.

Only French representatives will be entrusted with the arrangements for the function, the allied and associated plenipotentiaries being regarded as the guests of France.

The single question raised by the resolution is as to whether the league should receive further consideration by the people before the Senate advises its inclusion in the treaty. This can be done without delay, the work of the department was done, but did go to bed with a conscience, knowing I had done the very best I knew how to do and with the resolution that tomorrow I would improve the service of my department in every way possible.

"I want to repeat I had no connection with the referendum petitions in any way, and future developments will prove this statement true."

Wants Opinion Reserved.

"May I ask you, the public which you represent, as well as the stockholders of the company, to reserve your opinion on this matter until the unfortunate muddle has been cleared up or my innocence established in the courts?"

"I have dealt honestly with every one of the many problems coming before my department and in doing so have no doubt made some enemies. My work has necessarily kept me on the job all of the time and Mrs. Cameron has passed through a year of unjust and unfair criticism leveled at me, but her faith supports her, as she knows it will come out all right in the end."

At any time you wish to consult with me I am at your service.

"Yours very truly,"

"BRUCE CAMERON,"

Superintendent of Transportation.

The text of Bruce Cameron's resignation follows:

"Honorable Rolla Wells, receiver United Railways Co.,

Dear Sir:—In July, 1918, immediately after the receipt of my resignation which indicated me, I directed a letter to the Board of Directors of the United Railways Co., telling them I had no connection whatever with the work of my department and was, therefore, not responsible for the same, and did not see how I could be indicted upon the testimony of a man named Jackson, who confessed that he did the deed himself, and that I did not wish to endeavor to be involved in any way whatever, and if they thought it was best for the railways company for me to discontinue my services with the company, to consider that as my resignation, effective at their pleasure."

The board did not accept the resignation and I have been continued superintendent of transportation ever since. Recent developments have caused a great deal of unpleasant newspaper comment, and I am quite sure you are in an unenviable position. I do not wish to embarrass you in the least and you may consider this as my resignation as superintendent of transportation of the United Railways Co. of St. Louis, effective at your pleasure."

Fraises Men in Department.

"I was employed by this company in 1900 at the rate of $45 a month, and I have been in the employ of the company ever since, with the exception of six months during the first part of 1907.

"The duties of the head of the transportation department are manifold. It is not only a matter of instruction, train, discipline and command men who actually run the cars, as well as superintendents, supervisors, clerks, dispatchers, switchmen, car sweepers and car cleaners. In this department today we have approximately 3400 men, and they are most efficient, loyal, capable and honest body of men, and I am sure it has been my pleasure to know."

"Our cars are running on a good space. In the last 18 months we have reduced our accidents below the average as compared with the 12 other large cities of the United States. The supervisory force as well as the entire organization of the department are very efficient and the company continues to prosper."

"Personally I have given this property the very best that I had. I have worked for the company for 19 years with but two vacations, and from 15 to 24 hours each and every day. I regret very much to leave such a capable crowd, because every officer and man employed in the department has done the very best he could to provide safe and sane service in a courteous manner, and I have no doubt that the company will continue to prosper."

REPUBLICANS ABANDON KNOX RESOLUTION

Opponents of League Turn to Root's Proposal That Covenant Be Ratified With Reservations.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Senator Knox, Republican, Pennsylvania, announced today that, after appropriate bills had been passed, he would attempt to obtain a vote on his resolution expressing unwillingness to accept the league of nations covenant as an inseparable part of the peace settlement.

Senator Knox said the decision yesterday not to press for immediate action on the measure did not mean that there was any intention to abandon it. He issued this statement:

"Of course, I intend to press my resolution to a vote and a vote after July 1 will be just as good as a vote now."

The single question raised by the resolution is as to whether the league should receive further consideration by the people before the Senate advises its inclusion in the treaty. 60 KILLED AND 100 HURT IN STORMS AT FERGUS FALLS

500 Stores and Residences Are Demolished With Loss in Property of Several Million Dollars.

THREE TORNADOES SWEEP OVER TOWN

Thirty-Eight Bodies Recovered From Northwestern Section of City, Which Is in Ruins.

By the Associated Press.

FERGUS FALLS, Minn., June 23.—Between 60 and 70 persons were killed and more than 100 were badly injured by the tornado which struck Fergus Falls late yesterday and tore a large section of the city, including the business district, to pieces. Thirty-eight bodies have been recovered. About 500 stores and residences were demolished. The property loss will be several million dollars. Virtually the entire northwestern section of the city is in ruins.

Citizens say they believe that three storms struck the city in quick succession. Several persons corroborated statements that three funnel-shaped clouds were seen.

Railroad officials have been unable to obtain accurate information of the number of persons injured when Great Northern passenger train No. 1, known as the Orienta Limited, was swept from the tracks near here. Early reports said that one girl was injured and that her hurts were not serious.

The single question raised by the resolution is as to whether the United States should receive further consideration by the people before it is advised its inclusion in the treaty. This can be done without the peace a moment, and accomplished by exchange of diplomatic notes at any time.

It will be remembered this proposition of separate consideration was presented to the Senate Dec. 3, 1918, by the President left for Europe, as a pigeonhole in the Committee on Foreign Relations, then under Senate control. An amendment resolution was offered today, stating general sympathy with the resolution of the Senate, and the House would "violate every principle of a country" and would be a "disgrace to our interests."

"I have slept with this resolution at the head of my bed, at any hour of the night to be in case of trouble in the United States, should it arise to interfere with the proper operation of the government."

"I have dealt honestly with every one of the many problems coming to my department and in doing so have divided some enemies, but I have not made any enemies. ATTORNEY GENERAL REVIEWS ST. CLAIR COUNTY CONDITIONS

Conditions in St. Clair County form the subject for a large part of the annual report of Attorney General Edward B. Brundage to Gov. Lowden of Illinois. He tells of the prosecution of the East St. Louis race riot case, and also of the campaign which the Attorney General's office waged against unlicensed and lawless saloons in the county in 1917. A detailed report is made on the temper in which officials and lawmen co-operated in evading the law. The report states that $2,713,760 was paid for railroad passengers in St. Clair County in 1918, a record of 24 cents a mile, after a State law had provided the maximum rate should be 2 cents. The case was fought by 29 railroads, and ranks in importance in Illinois within the last two years. The office rendered 25,000 legal opinions within the period, according to the report. A biennial report is required by law.

Handsome Dood, but Perhaps One of Folly, Says Berlin Paper.

BERLIN, Sunday, June 23.—Bulletin announcing that the German fleet had been sunk in Scapa Flow, in a more suspicious political situation, might have caused an outbreak of enthusiasm, but the public was not moved to demonstration.

Commenting on the sinking of the fleet, the Berlin Gazette says that it was perhaps a deed of folly, as Germany might have been able to force an indemnity for the surrender of the vessels.

"Nevertheless," it continues, "it was a handsome deed."

The Neue Gazette says: "The official and men who performed this deed may be forgiven. They acted in a spirit of self-interest, they were trained. On the other hand, if the action carries with it injurious results for Germany, it must be regretted, for Germany hardly is in a position to indulge in the luxury of wars, and the brief satisfaction of appearing before the world in this manner may have been paid for in cash."

Associated Press. LONDON, June 23.—Although reports have stated that six Germans were killed and 100 wounded when the German fleet in Scapa Flow was fired upon subsequent to the scuttling of the German fleet, the Daily Mail says that others may have been drowned and that some may possibly have reached the Orkney Islands and have not yet been reported.

The main force of the British fleet was absent exercising at sea when the German ships were sunk, only some drifters, small warships and patrolling aircraft being on guard over the interned enemy squadron.

Admiral von Reuter, commander of the surrendered German fleet, says he issued an order to sink the ships, the Daily Mail adds, and did so because at the beginning of the war the German Emperor directed that no German warships should fall into the enemy's hands. He says that he believed, from newspaper reports, that the armistice had been ended.

Admiral von Reuter visited Germany some weeks ago, if being understood at the time that the reason for his visit was that he was ill, but he soon returned, and it is believed that at that time he circulated the order to sink the German ships by evading the censorship or making signals to the various vessels, an act which the close proximity of the German ships made quite easy. The Mail quotes the Admiralty as denying that the German crews were periodically changed and that there were nearly 5000 in the water or in the ships' bows when the fleet was sunk. Fourteen hundred were landed by the British on Sunday at Nigg, Rosneath, on the northern shore of Cromarty Firth. They were placed in hutments and are being held under military guard.

PHONE STRIKE LEADER, STREET CAR OFFICE IS ROBBED OF $1200

WITH GIRL, ARRESTED

17-Year-Old Operator's Father Claims Jennings and Others Abducted Daughter.

O. E. Jennings, organizer of telephone operators in St. Louis and director of the recent telephone strike, and three other electrical workers were arrested Saturday night at the residence of the father of the 17-year-old daughter, Marguerite, a Bell telephone operator. The Hess girl and three other young women, two of whom were operators, were in the place and also were taken to Clayton.

Hess telephoned Sheriff Bopp that he believed his daughter was at the De Foe place and asked the Sheriff to send a patrol car to get her. A deputy, the Sheriff and Hess reached the place at 9:30 o'clock.

The men said they were O. J. McSpadden, 22, of 5338 Henrietta street, D. H. Knoll, 21, of 2000 Easton avenue, and R. H. Stanley, 32, of 2813 North Eleventh street. The women said they were Ethel Butler of 1838 Warren street, Jeanette Dougherty of 1904 Papin street, and Della De Neet of 3839 Olive street.

When taken to Clayton the girls were questioned by Assistant Prosecuting Attorney McElhinney and by Homer Hall, an attorney who accompanied Hess. They said they had been invited to go to the De Foe place for a chicken dinner. Miss Hess said she had gone voluntarily and had not been "abducted."

Warrants for the men, who were held in the Clayton jail all of Saturday night, were issued yesterday by Justice Stecker and they were released on bonds signed by Henry Autenreith and Alroy S. Phillips, an attorney.

STREET CAR OFFICE IS ROBBED OF $1200

17-Year-Old Operator's Father Claims Jennings and Others Abducted Daughter.

O. E. Jennings, organizer of telephone operators in St. Louis and director of the recent telephone strike, and three other electrical workers were arrested Saturday night at the residence of the father of the 17-year-old daughter, Marguerite, a Bell telephone operator. The Hess girl and three other young women, two of whom were operators, were in the place and also were taken to Clayton.

Hess telephoned Sheriff Bopp that he believed his daughter was at the De Foe place and asked the Sheriff to send a patrol car to get her. A deputy, the Sheriff and Hess reached the place at 9:30 o'clock.

The men said they were O. J. McSpadden, 22, of 5338 Henrietta street, D. H. Knoll, 21, of 2000 Easton avenue, and R. H. Stanley, 32, of 2813 North Eleventh street. The women said they were Ethel Butler of 1838 Warren street, Jeanette Dougherty of 1904 Papin street, and Della De Neet of 3839 Olive street.

When taken to Clayton the girls were questioned by Assistant Prosecuting Attorney McElhinney and by Homer Hall, an attorney who accompanied Hess. They said they had been invited to go to the De Foe place for a chicken dinner. Miss Hess said she had gone voluntarily and had not been "abducted."

Warrants for the men, who were held in the Clayton jail all of Saturday night, were issued yesterday by Justice Stecker and they were released on bonds signed by Henry Autenreith and Alroy S. Phillips, an attorney.

MINIMUM CHARGE GIFT TO LACLEDE COMPANY

HADN'T ASKED AGAIN FOR RULING THAT WILL MEAN $50,299.50 A YEAR.

The monthly minimum charge of 50 cents for all gas consumers in St. Louis, allowed the Laclede Gas Light Co. Saturday by the Missouri Public Service Commission, will come to the company in the nature of a present which it had not asked for. The income from this source is estimated by experts at $50,299.50 a year.

When the Laclede filed its new rate schedule which it asked the commission to approve, it did not include the monthly minimum charge. It had in the past years attempted to obtain a minimum, but had not done the efforts when pronounced public opposition developed.

The rate asked for was an increase of 15 cents per 1000 cubic feet of gas consumed in households, making the rate 90 cents instead of 75 cents. The commission granted a 10-cent increase, fixing the rate at 85 cents, and also gratuitously ordered the 50 cents monthly minimum into effect.

The commission was the originator of the minimum provision in the rate throughout, having in the course of the hearings on the rate increase ordered of its own motion that it should be included in the rate schedule, which it would be derived from such a minimum. The commission's engineers also compiled similar figures.

Commissioner E. H. Wright, who wrote the opinion in the Laclede case, said in the opinion:

"Believe Charge Fair. There is no minimum charge provided for either in the schedule of rates now in effect, nor in the proposed schedule filed by the gas company. It appears from the evidence that the minimum charge is a quantity as low as 10 to 15 cents for gas furnished during the month."

"The commission is of opinion that it would be fair and equitable to provide for a minimum charge of 50 cents a customer a month to cover certain expenses which are incurred for the individual customer whether or not any gas is consumed, such as reading meter, keeping of accounts and rendering bills."

"You'll have to unlock that safe," he told Cahill. "Go on and unlock it, or I'll kill you both," Cahill replied, and the safe, and the robber took the money from the compartments where face collections and change were kept, and also took some pay envelopes from another drawer.

Following that, he jerked the telephone connections from the wall and then he cursed Cahill and Stow again, telling which he backed out, still talking.

Cahill described him as 25 years old, 5 feet 4 inches 150 pounds, dark hair and eyes and a brown suit.

Cahill lives at 2609 North Sarah street in St. Louis, and has been employed of the company many years.

Street Car Employee Released After Being Arrested.

Charles Stevenson, 30 years old, an employee of the East St. Louis & Suburban Railway Co. and whose home is at 601 South Fourth street, St. Louis, was held by the police for a while today pending investigation of an assault late last night on Peter Ross, 55 years old, a night watchman at the barns of the railroad.

Stevenson told the police that he was held up and robbed at 9:45 o'clock last night while he was going from his home to an address on North Fifth street. Two robbers held him covered with pistols, he said, and took $18 from his pockets.

Stevenson reported he had been robbed he went to the railway company barns, where Ross had been slugged by one of two masked men entering the barns. Stevenson was sitting. There he found his hat, which he said was taken by one of the men who robbed him. The hat, other employees of the place said, was dropped by one of the men who attempted to rob Ross.

Investigation confirmed Stevenson's story and he was released.

These witnesses in the order in which they appeared before Judge Lamm, and in the order in which the grand jury will probably hear them, are Julius Caesar Jackson, former chief sales agent of the United Railways, who testified last week that McCulloch ordered the burglary and discussed the plans with him; James F. Brady, confidential agent in the company's claim department, who testified that McCulloch sent $500 by him to Jackson in Chicago, after the burglary, and George W. Baumhoff, former general manager of the St. Louis Transit Co., who said he consulted McCulloch while the burglary was under grand jury investigation, and that McCulloch first said he would be indicted, because he had three friends on the grand jury.

McCulloch said that Ephim Kaplan, attorney for John W. Seaman in the recent breach suit, in which the testimony of Jackson, Brady and Baumhoff was brought out last week, would also be called as a witness tomorrow.

"Brass Tacks" in Advertising Experience Counts More Than Experiments

By WILBUR D. NESBIT,
1st Vice President, Wm. H. Rankin Co., Chicago, Washington, New York.

Last Thursday we ran one of our "Brass Tacks" advertisements in the Chicago Tribune. As an illustration of the fact that the right kind of advertising pays, before 10 o'clock that morning one of Chicago's largest concerns called us up and made an appointment to talk with us about a $100,000 campaign.

This advertiser was impressed most with the fact that the Wm. H. Rankin Company believes in taking its own medicine. He also felt that an advertiser that prepared and placed the advertising of such high class companies as Marshall Field & Co. (wholesale), The B. F. Goodrich Company, Wilson & Company, Mead Cycle Company, Haynes Automobile Company, Illinois Glass Company, Grinnell Glass Company, Cheney Talking Machine Company, and Kellogg's Toasted Corn Flakes Company—and had been working for such concerns for from one to twenty years—ought to be the right company for him to start with.

Experience counts in advertising, just as in everything else. We bank more on experience than we do on experiments. We look upon advertising as a means not only to create good will but to help make sales. We know that getting down to brass tacks pays. It pays us; it pays our customers. In our own advertising we do not pay for space just to make a good impression. We use this space just as in years gone by we sent out salesmen to tell our story to get new customers. We find printed advertising more economical for our purpose. We have no solicitors. When you talk business with us you talk with one of the principals in the business. Our advertising gets us more business at less cost than when we had several high-salaried solicitors.

One of the important things we do right here in our own office is to sell our whole organization on the tremendous value of advertising. Our aim is that everybody in both our Chicago and New York organizations, from the office boys up, shall firmly and forcefully believe in the advertising we do. And, frankly, everybody in our organization is loyally proud of our service and our work.

Our "Brass Tacks" talks have been very effective for us. They have brought out a side of our service that we know to be most important for our customers—the buying of space, planning the campaign, deciding upon the size of space and the mediums to be used. First of all, we want to help our customers invest their advertising money wisely and profitably. We avoid waste. We make every dollar count. And that tells its own story when your books are audited at the end of your year.

Most advertisers know of the high standing of the Rankin organization when it comes to copy and art service. They have seen our work in national publications for Wilson & Company, Grinnell Glass, Kellogg's, Goodrich De Luxe Truck Tires, Add-a-Pearl Co., Haynes Automobile, Athens Underwear, Kleister Cottens, and others. In Chicago newspapers they have seen the campaigns we prepared for the Retail Lumber Dealers' Association, Wilson & Company, Goodrich Safety Tires, Goodrich Silvertown Cord Tires, Schulze's Bread, Haynes Automobiles, De Luxe Bedsprings, Crisco Crackers, Diamond Tires, Kellogg's Toasted Corn Flakes, The Big Beeson Clothing Shop, and many more.

Back of this advertising and art service is our merchandising and sales co-operation work. At a recent sales convention the customer frankly told us that as a result of the way our executives sold the advertising to his salesmen the value of the campaign was increased at least 50 per cent. He also said his advertising was intrinsically worth 100 cents on the dollar, but that this salesman would use the campaign in a manner to make it yield a profit of at least 100%.

That's the way we look at advertising. It must not only bring back 100% of what it costs, but must show a profit. There is where our advice regarding the best way to invest money in advertising helps us in our work and benefits our customers.

We have no salesmen. This advertisement is a salesman for us. It will build good will, it will help with the man or company that is not yet ready to advertise.

We are planning for next year and the years thereafter. We want to be in touch with advertisers of tomorrow as well as those of today. Our best work is often done for an advertiser before he has put a penny into the purchase of space. This is shown by what a new customer of ours in New York wrote about us:

"The Rankin Company have been associated with our account and are preparing for us a national campaign. He inaugurated next fall. During our association with them they have displayed a breadth of vision and a keen knowledge of merchandising and advertising that have won our admiration and confidence."

Specimens of our work: sales literature written by executives of our company and any information desired will be sent you on request. Write or wire to Mr. Randolph Nesbit, Wm. H. Rankin Co., 1000 Michigan Bldg., Chicago.

HAYS USING ROOT TO GET PARTY OUT OF TREATY TANGLE

Republican Chairman Gets Knox Resolution Side-tracked for New Turn in Fight on League.

By DAVID LAWRENCE,
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Will Hays' work is bearing fruit. The Republican party is not going to mar its good beginning on domestic legislation by getting into a hopeless tangle on the Knox resolution separating the league of nations plans from the peace treaty.

Senator Lodge announces that, in order to pass needed appropriation bills, there will be no move to press for a vote on the Knox resolution. The Democrats insist that the real reason is that the Knox resolution can't pass and that the Republican leaders do not want to risk a blow to their prestige by defeat of the resolution.

As for the Republican fight against the league of nations, it has taken a new turn. Will Hays has again brought Elihu Root to the fore to state Republican viewpoint. But it is a serious question whether all the Republicans will follow even Root's suggestions. And the reasons are plain.

Root himself has changed his mind on Article 10, which would guarantee the boundaries of the peace treaty. In his first letter to Chairman Hays he argued that the article ought to be adopted with an amendment permitting withdrawal after five years. Instead of urging that amendment, he now insists that the whole article be stricken out.

By doing so, he asks the Republican party to go on record as opposing one of the most fundamental articles of the whole covenant of peace. That Root himself is aware of the immense responsibility of such a move is evidenced by his own suggestion that, if any doubt exists concerning the willingness of the other Powers to ratify the treaty and covenant after Article 10 has been omitted, our representatives at Paris can ascertain that fact right now.

He believes the Big Four will assent, but if they do not, he admits the whole peace treaty may be affected. Wilson Can Settle It.

President Wilson is fully expected by his friends here to solve Root's doubts at once. He can ask Prime Minister Lloyd George and Premier Clemenceau what they think about it. Anyone who has watched the course of the peace conference and the British and French point of view particularly will have no doubt of the answer.

Europe wants America to help keep peace in the world by throwing the weight of her influence behind the present settlement of boundaries, by helping guarantee peace. Root himself argued along that line in his first letter. Many people are asking what has caused him to change his mind. Possibly, he will gain more Republican support if he explains.

On another point, Democrats were especially inquisitive today as they analyzed the Root letter.

Root offers as a reason for American aloofness from Europe the fact that 35 per cent of the population of the United States is foreign born. He asks how the United States is going to control their sympathies and their action? "We participate in the settlement of European questions."

That is precisely the viewpoint which was so bitterly condemned just after the United States entered the war. American citizens of German birth protested violently against the idea of protecting American rights on the high seas on the ground that the Lusitania was a British ship and Americans had no business on the ocean while Europe was at war.

The sinking of the Lusitania was held up as an incident to a strictly European question. And when the United States entered the war many American citizens argued that they ought not to be obliged to fight against their first fatherland.

Who Shall Rule America? Immediately the outcry against the hypothesis became nation-wide. Shall a certain proportion of the hyphenates who constitute 35 per cent of the American population decide America's foreign policy or shall the 65 per cent native Americans rule the United States? This was the question more than one Democrat was asking today. Some of them said that, if Theodore Roosevelt were alive today, he might find a million reasons for opposing the League of Nations, but he never would argue that the United States could not control the "action" of foreign-born citizens in any question of foreign policy.

Most observers don't think Root seriously favors the Knox resolution to separate the peace treaty from the covenant or he would not be suggesting amendments based on the idea that there would be no such division.

Much sympathy was expressed with the proposal by Root that something be done to strengthen the system of judicial decisions on questions of legal right and particularly on the revision of development of international law. It was felt that there could be no valid objection to a description of the Monroe doctrine, such as Root suggests, or a specific exclusion from the Powers of the council of the league of the right to define the national or international limits of immigration as a question at issue.

Would Object to Losing Article. All these points, with the exception of the elimination of article 10, can be included by the Senate in its resolving resolution, and the other signatories to the treaty probably will offer no objection and the treaty will stand ratified.

They would object, however, to the loss of article 10 and would consider the treaty had lost its principal tooth, indeed, one by which they expect to make Germany carry out her promises. Eventually the Senate will decide on this point. And the ratifying resolution may explain or limit the time of our obligation to guarantee Europe's boundaries, possibly five years, but the United States will not abandon Europe at this stage of world confusion and disorder.

STATE MEDAL FOR EACH SOLDIER

Missouri expects to give a medal to each of her soldiers who served in the Spanish-American or world war, or on the Mexican border. Adjutant-General Harvey C. Clarke has written to the officers of the Missouri Historical Society, asking them to aid in gathering biographical data about each soldier who saw service. The society is being helped by the War Camp Community Service, which requests that all men who have not filled out correct information blanks call at 108 North Fourth street and obtain questionnaires.

GERMAN NOTE ON TREATY 'CONTRADICTIONS' AND REPLY MADE BY CLEMENCEAU

'No Divergencies,' Says French Premier; Explaining Points About Which Enemy Delegation Asked Confirmation.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
PARIS, Sunday, June 22.—The latest communication between the Allied and Associated Governments and the Germans on the peace treaty consists of a note by the Germans to the allies under date of June 19 and the answer of the allies under date of June 21. The German note from Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau to M. Clemenceau was forwarded from Versailles by Dr. Haniel von Haimhausen in the name of the German delegation. It says: "The examination of the four documents submitted on June 16 to the commissary-general of the delegation brings out the fact that a certain number of concessions are announced in the letter and memorandum which are not found in the text as changed by hand. Among the most important of these contradictions the German delegation has selected the following:

Alleged Contradictions.
"1. It is stated on page 7 of the memorandum that as Germany is admitted to the league of nations she shall enjoy the benefits resulting from the stipulation relative to the freedom of commerce and transit. It is stated on page 42 of the memorandum that for the minimum period of five years unilateral conditions in the matter of commercial relations would be imposed on Germany.
"2. It is stated on page 11 of the memorandum that France will assume the public debt of Alsace-Lorraine.

"3. It is stated on page 14 that for the plebiscite in Upper Silesia there shall be created a 'commission independent' (French in the text), while, according to the new draft of the conditions, this commission is to be appointed solely by the allies and associated Governments.

"4. It is stated on page 16 in the subject of territory of Memel, that the cession of this territory will take place under the form of a transfer to the allied and associated Powers because the status of the Lithuanian territories is not yet established. According to this provision, Lithuania should be considered as the state to be the definitive acquirer.

Commission for Heligoland.
"5. According to page 17 of the memorandum, the commission created for Heligoland by the allied and associated Governments is to decide what installations are to be maintained for the protection of the land.
"6. On page 21 of the memorandum it is promised that the German railways and mines of Shantung shall not be considered as property of the German state if the Germans can prove that they are private property.

"7. On page 21 it is stated that the allied and associated Governments are ready to submit, within one month after the treaty goes into force, a definitive list of the Germans to be surrendered to the enemy.
"8. On page 33 it is stipulated that the reparations commission cannot exact the surrender of secrets of manufacture or other confidential information. It is, moreover, stipulated that it shall have no executive power on German territory and that it shall not interfere in the direction or supervision of German establishments.

"9. On pages 34 and following, a special procedure is provided to fix and cover the reparations exacted from Germany.
"10. On page 36 Germany is promised facilities for the importation of food and raw materials.
"11. On page 38 there are included, among the cases in which the granting of permission to export gold shall be considered those in which the Reichsbank has furnished guarantees which it could not satisfy in any other way.

Ask Written Confirmation.
"12. On page 52 the assurance is given that any liquidators appointed by the allied and associated Governments who shall be guilty of punishable acts shall be prosecuted in conformity with the penal code.
"It is the duty of the German delegation to render an exact account to its Government and to the National Assembly, therefore it must know absolutely how far the enemy intends to give contract force to the concessions. It begs your excellency to confirm by writing the fact that the contents of the accompanying letter and the memorandum treating the above mentioned points constitute an integral part of the new peace propositions of the allied and associated Governments.

"In this it would be sufficient to establish this fact in final protocol to the text on which the contracting parties could come to a previous understanding. A doubt also has arisen concerning a second point when the documents submitted were examined.
Printed Copy Different.
"The printed copy of the peace subject submitted to us is different not alone in the matter of manuscript corrections and additions from the printed copy that the chairman of the German delegation received on May 7 from the Secretary-General of the peace conference.
"By reason of the amount of work imposed on the delegation by the shortness of the time allowed for the examination it has not yet been possible to compare word for word with this printed copy of May 7, this other single copy which a great number of persons have had constantly to use. I am, therefore, obliged to reserve for the delegation the right to make later communications on this subject. For the moment I call your attention to the following divergencies:

"1. On page 103 of the copy last sent, paragraph two contains a third, alienated (section), which begins with these words: 'Each Government.' This alienated is lacking in the copy sent before.
"2. On page 104 the English text of paragraph 12 is different in the different copies. The paragraph of the first copies had only one alienated, while in the last copy it is divided into two alienated, the second of which begins with these words: 'The completion shall in general.' 'Naturally the German delegation cannot consider as definite the changes in the text which are not made by hand, or which have not the evident character of additions.' (Continued on Next Page.)

Nothing Like Plain Nitro-Phosphate to Put on Firm, Healthy Flesh and to Increase Strength, Vigor and Nerve Force.

Judging from the countless preparations and treatments which are continually being advertised for the purpose of making thin people fleshy, developing grama neck and bust, and replacing hollows and angles by the soft curved lines of healthy beauty, there are evidently thousands of men and women who keenly feel their excessive thinness. Thinness and weakness are often due to starved nerves. Our bodies need more phosphate than is contained in modern foods. Physicians claim there is nothing that will supply this deficiency so well as the organic phosphate known among druggists as Nitro-phosphate, which is intensive and is sold by Judge & Dolph, Dealer in Drug Stores, Johnson Bros. Drug Co., Wolf-Wilson Drug Co., in St. Louis, and most all druggists. Under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back. By feeding the body cells with the necessary phosphate food element, Nitro-phosphate should produce a welcome transformation in the appearance in weight. It is presently being acclimating.

Increases in weight also carries with it a general improvement in the health. Increased vitality, increased energy, which nearly always accompany increased vitality, and increased energy, which nearly always accompany increased vitality, and increased energy, which nearly always accompany increased vitality.

"BROCKDORFF-RANTAU."

Clemenceau's Reply.

In his reply to Dr. Haniel von Hanielhausen, whose forwarding note was dated June 20, M. Clemenceau, addressing him as temporary chairman of the German delegation at Versailles, says:

"I have the honor to acknowledge receipt of your letter of June 20.

"In reply to this communication, the allied and associated Powers hasten to inform you that 200 copies of the peace conditions sent to the German delegation June 19 are to be considered as the authentic text, containing all the corrections and modifications made in the printed text sent on May 7, 1919, notably such changes and modifications as are the result of various German observations."

M. Clemenceau, in a second note to the German delegation, says:

"In your letter of June 20 you called attention of the allied and associated Governments to certain points upon which, according to the German delegation, there is a divergence between the text of the treaty and the memorandum sent to you on June 16, 1919, in reply to the German observations.

"I have the honor to inform you that the views of the allied and associated Governments on these different points are as follows:

Statements Complementary.

"1. The statements made on page 7 of the memorandum on the one hand, and pages 43 and 44 of the memorandum on the other, far from being contradictory are complementary.

"The covenant of the league of nations states that the members of the league will make the necessary provisions to insure and guarantee the maintenance of the freedom of communication and transit, as well as just treatment of the commerce of all the members of the league. When Germany is admitted into the league she will share the advantages of these stipulations with the other countries. But during the transition period following peace it is necessary to take into account the special considerations stipulated on page 43 of the document.

"According to this statement, the obligations imposed on Germany have the character of measures of reparation, and their maintenance for a period of five years, far from being incompatible with the principles of just treatment, is in view of insuring the application of this principle.

"The power given to the league of nations by articles 230 and 273 will be exercised in accordance with the same principle and in conformity with the spirit and the text of the covenant of the league.

Assessment of Alsace-Lorraine.

"2. The memorandum states on page 11 that 'concerning the local debt of Alsace-Lorraine and the public establishment of Alsace-Lorraine,' the allied and associated Powers have agreed in understanding that France assumes them. Now, article 55, combined with article 255 of the treaty, is relative to the public debts of the 'German empire and states,' and there is no clause exempting France from the payment of the local debt of Alsace-Lorraine. There is therefore no divergence between the memorandum and the treaty.

"3. The commission which has been provided for Upper Silesia and which, according to article 45 of the treaty, is to be appointed by the principal allied and associated Powers, is called in the memorandum a 'commission independent'—separate commission—in order to explain that it is a commission specially charged with the mission mentioned in the aforesaid article 45. It does not appear that there is a matter of any divergence whatever between the treaty and the memorandum.

"4. The explanations given on page 16 of the memorandum concerning Memel show no contradiction between the treaty and the memorandum.

Powers of Heligoland Commission.

"5. Concerning the destruction of the fortifications of Heligoland, the principal allied and associated Powers intend, as they explained on page 17, to appoint a commission to exercise this control, in conformity with the treaty. This commission will have the power to decide what part of the works protecting the coast against the erosion of the sea shall be kept and what part shall be destroyed.

"6. The allied and associated Powers think it their duty to point out that they have never declared that the German railroads and mines of Shantung shall not be considered as property of the German state if the Germans can prove that they are private property. On the contrary, the allied and associated Powers consider them to be public property. Nevertheless, if Germany can prove that her nationals hold shares in these enterprises, they shall receive the benefit of the general principles established in the treaty for such matters.

"7. As stated on page 31 of the memorandum, the allied and associated Powers intend to address to the German Government within a month after the treaty comes into force a list of the persons whom in accordance with article 28, alinea 2, Germany is to surrender to the allied and associated Powers.

No Executive Authority.

"8. The allied and associated Powers, as stated on page 33, have no intention of giving the reparations commission the authority to exact a revelation of secrets of manufacture, or other confidential information. As to the exercise of executive power to German territory or interference in the direction of superintendence of German scholastic establishments, the treaty contains no stipulations giving such authority to the reparations commission.

"9. On pages 34 and following of the memorandum the allied and associated Powers have not provided any special procedure to fix and cover the reparations exacted from Germany. The allied and associated Powers have given Germany the possibility of presenting for the examination of the said Powers documents and propositions at the signing of the treaty and within the four following months, with a view to hastening the work of reparations thus greatly shortening the investigation and accelerating the discussions.

"10. Concerning the facilities considered on page 36 of the memorandum for the importation of food and raw materials into Germany, they were mentioned only 'under reserve' of certain conditions and within limits that cannot be indicated in advance and also under reserve of the necessity in which the allied and associated Powers find themselves of taking legitimate account of their own economic situation resulting from the German aggression and from the war. This cannot be considered as a promise to depart from the terms of the treaty, but the expression of the intention of the allied and associated Powers to facilitate as far as possible the resumption of economic life in Germany.

"11. The memorandum provided that the reparations commission should be competent to grant to the Reichsbank, whenever, it shall see fit, the right to export gold, in case it is a question of guarantees that this bank has furnished and which could not be furnished by any other means."

"This assertion is in perfect accord with the stipulation inserted in the treaty, article 243, according to which, up to May 1, 1921, the German Government shall be allowed neither to export gold nor to dispose of it, nor to permit gold to be exported or disposed of without the previous authorization of the Allied and Associated Powers represented by the reparations commission.

"12. The Allied and Associated States, which on page 53 of the memorandum declared themselves ready to receive any information and proof that the German Government may be able to furnish on the subject of interested or fraudulent acts committed by persons charged with the liquidation of the German property in the Allied and Associated States, will prosecute these persons in conformity with their own legislation, and if necessary will impose penalties in every way conforming to the provisions of their national law.

"Among the interpretations above given, those which, according to the Allied and Associated Powers may be considered as constituting an engagement, have been incorporated in the enclosed protocol, which the Allied and Associated Governments are disposed to annex to the treaty.

EDUCATORS OF DEAF MEET HERE

The annual convention and demonstration of the National Society of Progressive Oral Advocates, an organization for the education of the deaf, opened today at the auditorium of the Washington University Medical School. Sessions will be held this morning and afternoon, tomorrow and Wednesday.

Mayor Kiel is to speak today, and a number of educators of the deaf will be heard during the week. Deaf children, taught under the direction of the society, will demonstrate their ability to overcome their handicap by recitations, songs and general demonstrations of the work they have done.

Lowden Signs Search Law.

By the Associated Press. SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 23.—Gov. Lowden yesterday signed the so-called search and seizure bill. The measure was enacted as prohibition enforcement legislation, supported vigorously by the Anti-Saloon League and as strenuously opposed by the liquor interests. It provides severe penalties for sale, possession or transportation of intoxicating liquor without a license from the Attorney-General and is operative in territory made "dry" by Illinois statute, and exempts liquor for sacramental, scientific, chemical and medicinal purposes. Private homes are safeguarded from search, and signatures of two judges are required on search warrants.

FORMAL IRISH PLEA BEFORE CONFERENCE

Argument for Independence Goes to Clemenceau; Another Document by Walsh and Dunne.

By LINCOLN EYRE, Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

PARIS, June 23.—The envoys of the Irish Republic have laid before the peace conference their first formal presentation of Ireland's plea for independence. Printed on parchment in French, English and Gaelic and bearing the signatures of Sean J. O'Connell (O'Kelly), the "Irish Ambassador" to France, and of George Gavan Duffy, his associate, the document was handed to M. Mandel, Premier Clemenceau's chief secretary, at the Ministry of War yesterday morning.

It is entitled, "A Memorandum in Support of the Revindication of Ireland to Be Recognized a Sovereign and Independent State," and numbers some 4000 words. While offering an able exposition of Sinn Féin arguments and aspirations, it throws no fresh light on the Irish question as a whole. At the same time, the American collaborators, Frank P. Walsh and former Gov. F. F. Dunne, made a rejoinder to the British Government's reply to their "atrocity" report.

This new statement sent to the American peace mission, insists upon the veracity of the allegations made by the Irish-American delegation, and avers that the charges denied by Ian MacPherson, Great Britain's Secretary for Ireland, will be substantiated by a large number of witnesses.

The message to Premier Clemenceau says: "England opposes Irish revindication, giving as her reason that the independence of Ireland is incompatible with the safety of England or of Great Britain, or of the British Empire. If this viewpoint were to be admitted, every nation would have the right to subjugate any other nation whose liberty it judged would be incompatible with its own safety. The natural consequence would be war without end."

"The English Government in Ireland always has been, and is at the present hour in the most evident manner, an outrage to the conscience of humanity. The English people have delegated their pretended authority over Ireland to a series of absolutely irresponsible civil or military satraps who are not subject either in England or Ireland to any public control, and who, in no way, represent the interests of the Irish people."

"In these later days, and at the present moment, the exceptional powers necessitated by the European war have served only for the oppression of Ireland. In view of these powers a military Government has been established in some districts, which have been treated as conquered countries in ordinary war."

"The Irish envoys make the point that Ireland is no nearer to England than many European countries are to each other."

"It is just this proximity," they affirm, "that makes the independence of Ireland a necessity for its own sufficient guarantee of the rights of Ireland against British interests. The interests of England during the war, the Irish delegates observe, have deprived the natural ports of Ireland of merchant shipping outside of that which assures limited traffic with England."

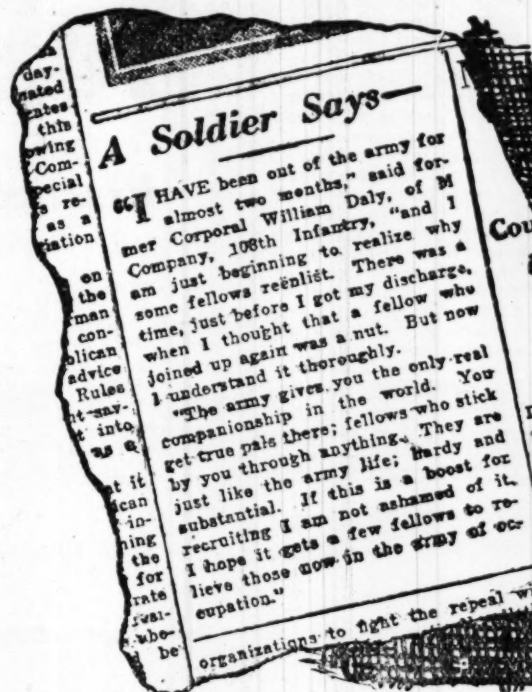

"The complete liberation of Ireland," the document avers, "must necessarily result from putting into practice the principles of President Wilson. Hisbert's theoretic acceptance of these principles has remained without effect, but not to recognize Ireland's right to decide her own destiny is to reject them altogether."

Long extracts from President Wilson's speeches follow. In conclusion, the memorandum proclaims that, unless the Irish people are permitted to establish the form of government they desire, as was clearly indicated at the last general election in Ireland, there can be no veritable peace based on the principle of nationalities and international rights; that, in the league of nations, the voice of Ireland would never be heard except in favor of peace and justice, and that, in the liberation of Ireland there would terminate "the longest torture ever endured in history by a people of the oldest emity that has ever divided peoples."

In the statement issued by Walsh and Dunne, they say that the delegation will produce photographs that will prove the Irish political prisoners were kept in animal cages. They assert that records of jails and of insane asylums will be produced to prove that a number of Irish republicans were rendered insane by bad treatment. They also claim that victims of pneumonia were drowned in cold water, and that they would produce records of hospitals and the testimony of physicians of high standing to prove this.

The list of dead, maimed and disabled will be produced before the conference, according to the memorandum. Such a list is already in Washington for presentation to the Congress of the United States. They assert that members of the English Army Royal Irish Constabulary, who were assigned to duties they were ordered to perform recently have either "resigned" or were ready to sacrifice their career in the interests of humanity and justice.

The statement concludes: "Unless the Government of Great Britain agrees quickly to the institution of an impartial court of inquiry by the Peace Commission, then its hypocritical intention to be the defender of small and weak nations will be exposed to the world in its nakedness."

"Fellows Who Stick by You Through Anything"

—says Corporal Daly

In "this man's army" you form the finest of friendships, the kind that last through life. Read what Corporal William Daly, of Company M, 108th Infantry, says. He knows. He's tried it. Wouldn't you like to be one of Uncle Sam's "buddies," wearing a uniform that is honored in every land, one of the big, clean army of regular fellows, and "sit on the top of the world"? Well, here's your chance! Read every word of this advertisement.

Good Pay—Foreign Service—Free Education

When you're in the Army, Uncle Sam pays your bills—food, clothing, living quarters, everything of the best quality. He furnishes medical attention, care of the teeth, all the necessities. In addition, at the present rate of pay, you receive $30 a month and upward—all "velvet." It means money in the bank if you are thrifty. Does your present job show you $30 a month profit?

Our flag flies in France, on the Rhine, in the Philippines, Porto Rico, Alaska, China, Panama, Hawaii, etc. What part of the world would you rather see? Wherever the flag floats, there Uncle Sam's boys will be found guarding its honor. Extra pay for service in Europe, Asia, Philippines and Alaska. This means experience most people gladly pay for. Uncle Sam pays you.

And when you are in the Army, Uncle Sam offers you an education—a good one.

You can study almost anything, right up to college and technical subjects. You can learn a skilled trade.

When you enlist, you actually go into training for SUCCESS in after life, laying a firm foundation to build on.

U.S. ARMY

50,000 Red-Blooded Men Going to Serve in France and on the Rhine—Now

If you want to see the battlefields of France, and the historic Rhine which the Germans thought impassable, enlist today. You will be sent across the Atlantic to join the Army of Occupation of the A. E. F. This is the chance of a lifetime. Many veterans are re-enlisting to go back there. You may be too late unless you act at once.

YOUR OPPORTUNITY—WILL YOU GO?

Healthy, Out-Door Life

In the Army, you live mostly out-of-doors. Your work builds you up physically, makes you strong, healthy, alert and masterful. Skilled physicians look after you. Your military duties keep you fit. You eat well, sleep well, feel like a king all the time. Most men gain weight when in the Army, and it's all sound muscle—no fat. Military life makes you courageous, builds up will-power and self-control, gives you mastery over yourself. It broadens your mind, and stiffens your backbone. It makes you the kind of chap that gets the best sort of job when your enlistment is up. It develops confidence and leadership. The U. S. soldier is respected everywhere, because he has the greatest government in the world behind him. His uniform is a uniform of honor. No calling builds up character and independence like the military profession.

Training in a Skilled Trade Fits You for Success in Life

There are thirteen branches of the service: Infantry, Cavalry, Field Artillery, Ordnance Dept., Medical Dept. (including Veterinary Corps), Coast Artillery, Signal Corps, Tank Corps, Motor Transport Corps, Air Service (including Balloon Corps), Quartermaster Corps, Engineers, Construction Division. You have your choice of these branches. Each branch utilizes a number of skilled trades—often a great many. These trades include surveying, auto-repairing, telephone repairing, road construction, wireless telegraphy, tailoring, telegraphy, switch-board installation, motor mechanics (air and ground) and a great many others. YOU CAN CHOOSE WHICH OF THESE TRADES YOU WILL LEARN.

Liberty and Recreation

In the Army you have plenty of liberty, and lots of entertainment. You can play baseball, football or other games. You go to shows, dances, movies. You meet agreeable people in Hostess Houses. You get acquainted with nice girls. IN FACT, YOU HAVE A BETTER TIME THAN MOST CIVILIANS.

Promotion

By sticking to the game, you may become a non-commissioned or commissioned officer. Men are also selected from the ranks to go to West Point; others are commissioned from the ranks. There are also the grades of corporal and sergeant in the line, and higher non-commissioned staff grades. Every promotion brings added pay. Marksmanship brings added pay. Skill at your trade brings increased pay.

Now, Men, what do you want? Call and talk it over To-day!

Ask all the questions you wish. You incur not the slightest obligation by doing so. Courteous non-commissioned officers on duty will cheerfully furnish information and give you printed matter to look over at home. This advertisement tells only part of the story. Get the rest to-day.

PHYSICALLY FIT AT ANY AGE

It isn't age, it's careless living that puts men "down and out." Keep your internal organs in good condition and you will always be physically fit.

The kidneys are the most over-worked organs in the human body. When they break down under the strain and the deadly uric acid accumulates and crystallizes, look out! These sharp crystals tear and scratch the delicate channels, causing excruciating pain and set up irritations which will cause premature degeneration and often do turn into deadly Bright's Disease.

One of the first warnings of sluggish kidney action is pain or stiffness in the small of the back, loss of appetite, indigestion or rheumatism. Do not wait until danger is upon you. At the first indication of trouble get a trial box of GOLD MEDAL Bladder Oil Capsules imported direct from Holland. They will give almost immediate relief. If for any cause they should not your money will be refunded. But be sure to get GOLD MEDAL. None other is genuine. In sealed boxes, three sizes.—ADV.

FACES ICY DEATH TO FIND FROZEN SETTLER

Northwest Mounted Policeman Makes 2000-Mile Journey to Perform Last Rites.

By the Associated Press.
SASKATOON, Sask., June 21.—"This is the grave of Emanuel Persen. Let nobody interfere with it."

This inscription, written in English, French, Cree and Chipewyan on the door of a rude hut several hundred miles north of Edmonton, serves as an epitaph for a settler who died alone in that frozen wilderness and remains as a tablet to the heroism of a mounted police constable, who made a journey of 2000 miles to investigate the death.

The journey has just been completed by Constable M. Chappin of the Provincial Police. It took Chappin more than three months to make the trip. The trapper died about nine months before Chappin's guide refused to go any farther. The constable to Saskatoon in the last chapter of the thrilling tale.

Word was received last February by the provincial inspector at Prince Albert that a man had died some distance north of the Hudson Bay post at Fond du Lac. An investigation was considered necessary. On Feb. 16 Constable Chappin and his dog team left Jole la Croix. The temperature was 30 degrees below zero when the constable started north. The only man with him was an Indian guide.

Shortly after leaving the Jole, Chappin ran into snow two feet deep. Wolves were numerous. Two of the dogs were eaten by these animals during the first 20 days' travel.

When Chappin arrived at Cree Lake the temperature was 50 degrees below zero and the snow was four feet deep. The constable said his guide refused to go any farther. Indians in that district declined to accompany the Scarlet Rider. Chappin, however, met a white trapper who had made the trip in the summer two years before and he agreed to act as guide for $6 per day.

The journey was slow because of the intense cold, but they pushed on to the isolated Hudson Bay post at Fond du Lac.

Post officials told Chappin that Persen, a Swede, lived in a shanty near Gender Creek, some distance from Cree Lake. Chappin and his guide made the last lap of their journey practically all on foot. They found the shack with a pole pressed against the door. Persen's body, partly covered by a blanket, was found lying on a bunk. Pieces of wood, partly made into shavings, were close to the fireplace. A diary was found which had been entered up to March 23, 1918.

Chappin found it impossible to dig a grave. He smashed the rock stove and covered the body with the fragments. Then he wrote the inscription on the door and began his return journey.

RIVER DES PERES RISES SO HIGH OPERA TONIGHT IS CALLED OFF

Water Makes Stage and Dressing Rooms Uninhabitable, So "The Bohemian Girl" Is Postponed.

Because the rains have raised the River des Peres to flood stage, there will be no performance of opera at the municipal theater in Forest Park tonight. It is announced. The second week was to be open with "The Bohemian Girl," but water has made the stage and dressing rooms uninhabitable for the present. Further announcement will be made of the resumption of the season.

The dress rehearsal of this work was cut short yesterday afternoon by a downpour of rain. The elements also scored an advantage last night, when an extra performance of "Rob in Hood" was to be put on for the benefit of those whom inclement skies frightened away on previous evenings.

An audience had gathered and curtain time was at hand, when a steady downfall set in. Outdoor opera enthusiasts are acclimated to ordinary showers; customarily they hold umbrellas and wait with resignation for the rain to pass. But this time the clouds were evidently in earnest, so the performance was called off and a hasty departure taken.

ONE AMERICAN KILLED IN FIGHT WITH BOLSHIEVIKI

First Report of Death in Action of U. S. Soldier in Siberia—Two Captured.

By the Associated Press. VLADIVOSTOK, Thursday, June 13.—Walter Kellerman of Chicago was killed and C. H. Batchelor of Kansas City and Chester Burt of Antigo, Wis., were captured in a fight between 25 Americans and 200 Bolsheviks June 12, 100 miles to the north of Vladivostok. But later was released, having been given a note saying that Batchelor would be freed only upon the release of all Bolshevik prisoners. Burt said Batchelor was being well treated.

News of the death in action of the first American in Siberia was received at headquarters June 13, but a few hours later communication with American detachments was broken when the Bolsheviks attacked the Japanese sector at Nikolsk and Shashko where the rails of the railways were loosened and the wires cut. Communication was re-established.

June 18, but there have been no reports from the Americans, except news brought by a Japanese courier that the Japanese and American troops were making a determined effort to prevent the Bolsheviks from destroying the railroad.

Kellerman met his death on the skirmish line, while Burt and Batchelor were captured while making a position map. In addition, one American was wounded. The Bolsheviks lost eight men killed and four taken prisoner.

In another fight at Ushanka village, June 11, four Americans were wounded and one Bolshevik was killed and two were wounded and four made prisoner.

MONKEY IN YARD BITES GIRL

Five monkeys in the yard at the rear of the home of Mrs. Jane Coyle, 59 South Fifteenth street, were ordered kept chained until further notice by police last night after one of the animals had bitten off the end of a finger of Laura Davis, 6, of 1512 Walnut street. Police ordered all the animals kept confined because they could not tell which one had bitten the child.

Police report the child was in an adjoining yard and stuck the middle finger of her left hand through a knot hole in the fence. One of the monkeys snapped at the finger and severed the first joint. The child was taken to the city hospital and later returned home.

Henry H. Fabricius Is Dead. Henry H. Fabricius, 62 years old, of 3536 Sidney street, died yesterday of Bright's disease, following an illness of several months. He was president of the Fabricius Mercantile Co., 1823 Washington avenue.

His mother, wife and four children survive him. He was a member of Keystone Lodge 243, A. F. and A. M. The funeral will be Wednesday from the residence to Missouri Crematory.

For the Tired Business Man

When Jim tells me he's going to have a hard day at the office, I know it's going to need something especially nice for dinner to make him the cheery, carefree husband I married—and on days like that I usually give him scalloped oysters because he likes them better that way.

I beat and butter individual egg shirries, put in a piece of buttered toast, cover with the oysters, and sprinkle with salt, pepper, and a teaspoonful of AI Sauce. I bake all this in a hot oven and until the edges ruffle, and garnish with toast points and lemon. It's really no bother at all. It's the AI Sauce that does the trick. After that Jim's all pep and sunshine again. There's nothing like it to make him forget that he's a tired business man.—ADV.

RECEPTION TONIGHT FOR VISITING CATHOLIC EDUCATORS

Program at St. Louis University; Convention to Open Formally Tomorrow.

The Advisory Committee of the Catholic Educational Association met this morning at Hotel Jefferson as a preliminary to the sixteenth annual meeting of the association, which includes representatives of Catholic colleges and secondary schools throughout the United States.

A reception to the delegates will be held tonight at St. Louis University. The opening ceremony of the convention will be a mass in the New Cathedral at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning, at which time Archbishop Glennon will address the delegates. The first business session will open at 11 a. m. in the Cathedral School auditorium, with an address by the president-general, the Right Rev. Thomas J. Shahan D. D., rector of the National Catholic University, Washington.

The sessions will continue through Thursday morning, to be followed by a local teachers' meeting Thursday afternoon. Bishop Shahan arrived in St. Louis Saturday night, and is Archbishop Glennon's guest. He was made an officer of the French Legion of Honor by the French Government in recognition of his war-time services and of the war work of the university. The university's buildings and equipment were placed at the Government's disposal during the war, and the Martin Maloney Chemical Laboratory, attached to the institution, was the scene of some of the most important experimental work done by the experts of the gas and flame division.

BOLSHEVIK BATTLESHIP AND 2 CRUISERS ARE REPORTED SUNK

Finnish Dispatch Says British Torpedoed Big Craft Near Kronstadt.

By the Associated Press. LONDON, June 22.—The Bolshevik battleship Andrei Pervosvanni is believed to have been sunk by a British torpedo near Kronstadt on Thursday, according to a Finnish naval dispatch quoted in a Helsingfors cablegram to the Daily Mail. The telegram adds that the Bolshevik battleship Petropavlovsk has hoisted the white flag.

The Andrei Pervosvanni was built in 1907. It was 454 feet long and had a beam of 80 feet, being manned by 933 men. The Petropavlovsk displaces 23,370 tons.

HELSINGFORS, Thursday, June 19.—British warships on Wednesday evening torpedoed the Bolshevik armored cruiser Slava, which sank immediately.

The only Russian warship bearing the name of Slava to be found in available lists was sunk by the German squadron on Oct. 17, 1917, in the Gulf of Riga. It seems probable, however, that some other craft was given the name of the Slava, which was entered in the Russian Admiralty reports as a battleship. A report received on Friday stated that the Russian cruiser Oleg had been sunk on Wednesday by a British submarine.

DRAMA AND COMEDY AT GRAND CENTRAL

Anita Stewart, Fatty Arbuckle and Color Pictures on Bill.

Anita Stewart in "Mary Regan," a well-done tenderloin drama, is the principal offering at the New Grand Central this week. The star has the role of a girl who has two suitors, but has made up her mind not to marry because her father can't get away for the wedding, as he is unavoidably detained in the penitentiary.

Though it is two late to reform her father she decides at last to marry one of the suitors to reform him. His main fault is that he has more money than is good for him and spends it in places where the high cost of living makes no difference. This affords a fine opportunity to show the interiors of some of these places.

Mary gets into all sorts of trouble, but there is a hero detective always on hand to save her. On the bill also are Fatty Arbuckle in "A Desert Hero" and a new showing of Prizma natural color pictures.

RECENT FILM SUCCESES AT WEST END HOUSES

"The New Moon" and "Daddy Long Legs" Still Prime Attractions.

Norma Talmadge in "The New Moon" and Gladys Brockwell in "The Divorce Trap" are the features at the Pershing. "The New Moon" is a powerful drama of the Russian revolution. It has had a successful run at a downtown theater.

At the West End Lyric "Daddy Long Legs" is the carded attraction, with Mary Pickford in the leading role. This also has tried and true qualities, having just finished a two weeks' run at the New Grand Central.

THREE STARS ON BILL AT KINGS AND MOZART

Three stars are on this week's bill at the King's Theater and the King's Mozart Alhambra. "Hayfoot, Strawfoot" with Charles Ray in the role of a small town recruit is the featured attraction. This is one of the most amusing comedies in which this ingenious youth has been seen for some time and its travesties and take-offs on the trials and vicissitudes of army life in a period of quick preparation are extremely funny.

In "The Veiled Adventure," finds a gray devil in the pocket of her fiancé she vows she will teach him a lesson. She does not like gray in the first place, and the fact that the veil belongs to her rival makes matters worse. She invests in a beauty parlor, turns thief, makes love to her brother's chum and threatens to elope at midnight. She "teaches the lesson" all right but in doing so changes her whole career.

"Fatty" Arbuckle, as a tenderfoot, becomes a desert hero when he offers to bet that he can shoot the B. V. D.s off a mosquito. He falls in love with a vampyre and tames her to such an extent that she becomes a good cook and housekeeper.

JESS WILLARD STARS AT LIBERTY THEATER

Evelyn Nesbit and Constance Talmadge Also on Program.

A drama with Jess Willard in the leading role, Evelyn Nesbit in "Her Little Sister" and Constance Talmadge in "Experimental Marriage," make up a good triple bill at the Liberty, to which are added an unusually interesting news pictorial and a Mutt and Jeff comedy.

The Willard pictures are of interest to fight fans as showing a comparison between his condition when he trained for his fight with Jack Johnson and his present condition. The training pictures were actually made before the battle which won him the championship. Around this interesting event a movie story has been woven, and for these auxiliary scenes Willard posed only recently. He is not a bad movie actor at that.

At Downtown Theaters.

Tom Moore in "The City of Comrades" is the leading feature at the Columbia. At the Royal "Fit to Win" has gone into another week. The attraction at the Central is "Auction of Souls," a story of Turkish atrocities in Armenia.

AUSTRIAN SOVIET RENEWS FIGHT

Forces Reported to Have Taken Up Attempts Against Pressburg Again.

By the Associated Press. VIENNA, Saturday, June 21.—The Soviet forces are reported to be renewing their attempts against Pressburg. The railway men who struck for higher wages in March made a demand today for more money.

President Seltz replied that if more relief allowances were paid there would be no money left. He said the factories were being socialized and that two billion crowns had been paid for relief to soldiers and workmen during the past eight months. He promised, however, an increased payment in the August allowances.

The Communists say the Rothschilds and other wealthy families are guaranteeing pensions to the Volkswehr, and that when the rich spend money in such ways communism is bound to result.

Your Home MORE Beautiful

When you come home after a summer away, wouldn't it be a tremendous happiness to return to a more beautiful home?—one perfectly redecorated, possibly entirely changed, but altogether beautiful?

This is a peculiar service we render.

And we offer other points of advantage aside from our artistic ability to create and execute schemes of home decoration and our substantiality that makes you willing to turn your home over to us with absolute confidence in the result.

Rugs Woven to Order

One point is the furnishing of specially woven rugs? In a word, we can have made for you any kind of rug, all woven without a seam.

There are nine qualities and ninety colors from which to choose (and special tones if your choice isn't among the ninety)—any shape or size up to thirty feet in width, and special designs can be carried out if you prefer this to plain or hand-bordered rugs.

Oval, square, oblong, round or irregular shapes for spaces that require them, woven in one piece and entirely seamless.

The prices range according to quality and other considerations from $10 to $50 the square yard, and as these rugs require time in the weaving, they must be ordered several weeks before desired delivery.

Schemes Submitted Complete

Then another point. Without the slightest doubt in your mind, you may leave the work to us while you are away.

We show you complete drawings of what is to be done, submit samples of fabrics and individual pieces of furniture. You may see the whole in miniature, and can return to the fulfilled promise.

This is service de Luxe.

Is your wife a partner or just a highgrade housekeeper?

Does she know what you own and owe?

Is there money in the bank for the things you both want, and for the house too?

Where does the money go?

Why not sell your wife a partnership?

And then when she is a partner in the company, show her the balance sheet.

For no family income, even in the multi-millionaire class, was ever large enough to supply everything everybody in the family would like to have.

The main thing, then, is to get out of the dollars of income more of the things you want.

First you must know the amount of your income.

And then of course you must determine the things you both want, and then arrange your expenditures so that money will be available.

It's not the big, occasional expenditures that eat up the family money, it's the spending of small amounts day by day for non-essentials.

"Getting Your Money's Worth" in the July Woman's Home Companion is not a theory. It is a detailed sum-up of the successful experiences of families whose incomes vary in amount as their wants vary in character.

Not the usual "ideal" budget, with the usual 20% for rent, 25% for food, and so on, but a plan built out of the knowledge that living conditions, needs and desires differ so much that percentage divisions have no real meaning.

And with a thoroughness characteristic of Woman's Home Companion special articles, there is in "Getting Your Money's Worth" a proved plan for putting this idea into immediate and successful execution.

WOMAN GETS WRONG SUITCASE Finds Man's Clothing in Bag Instead of Her Own Property.

Miss Edna Hillier of 4235A Gibson avenue told police she received a shock last night when she opened a suitcase she had picked up on the rear platform of a Manchester car and found it to contain a pair of man's trousers, shirt, shoes, underwear and a No. 15 collar. She had expected to find her own property, consisting of dresses, toilet articles, a rosary and a prayer book. She said she boarded the car at Meramec Highlands and placed her suitcase on the platform. She left the car in a hurry, she said, and picked up one of two cases, believing she was carrying her own.

PERSHING STADIUM PRESENTED TO FRENCH

American Commander in Chief First Accepts It as Gift From Y. M. C. A. to U. S. Army

By the Associated Press.
PARIS, June 23.—General Secretary Carter of the Young Men's Christian Association yesterday presented Pershing Stadium to the American army. Gen. Pershing, Commander in Chief of the American forces, received the stadium on behalf of the American expeditionary force, and then presented it to the French people. Gen. Pershing in an address said in part:

"Conscious of the service which athletes rendered and of the influence athletic training had in making victory possible, it seems a fitting conclusion that our labors in a common cause should be celebrated by a great tournament in which the athletes of the allied nations will join in friendly contest."

Gen. Pershing recalled that the day was the second anniversary of the arrival of the first contingent of American combatant forces in France. He said he hoped the tournament would be considered a recognition of the generous and gracious spirit that had been accorded to Americans from the beginning of their service abroad and that the stadium would become a permanent testimonial of American esteem and an enduring monument to the sportsmanlike spirit that had inspired and sustained France throughout the war.

All Allies Represented.
Gen. O. Alby, chief of the French general staff, was present, alongside of Gen. Tasker H. Bliss, U. S. A. Every allied and neutral country in the world was represented among the distinguished guests in the tribune of honor. The guests were presented large numbers of notables in French sporting circles. Prominent among the army representation was Capt. Rene Fonck, the French aviation ace, wearing his war cross with palms, and other decorations.

Moroccan troops of the Fourth Zouaves, with their "noubas" band of African instruments resembling bagpipes, the troops the Americans relieved when they first went into the trenches, lent color to the guard of honor. Both the Americans and the French chassours won great applause by an exhibition drill.

Presentation of Stadium.
After the passage of the troops, Secretary Carter of the Y. M. C. A. in a brief address presented the stadium to Gen. Pershing, who, in a few appropriate words, turned over the great arena to the French committee. M. Leygues, Minister of Marine, accepted the gift in the name of the committee and of the French nation.

French, American, Italian and Belgian airplanes flew over the stadium, throughout the ceremony, dropping parachutes with flags of their national colors and shimmering streamers.

Hugh Wallace, the American Ambassador, represented President Wilson and M. Leygues acted for Premier Clemenceau at the ceremony. Both President Wilson and M. Clemenceau were prevented from being present.

The crowd overflowed the stands and broke through the guards of French and American soldiers and invaded the field.
It was the second anniversary of the landing of the first division of the American army at St. Nazaire. Men picked from that division and men from the second and third divisions which helped stop the Germans at Chateau-Thierry barely a year ago, paraded with other picked men from the third army, being reviewed by Gen. Pershing and President Poincaré. Following them came the Thirtieth Battalion of French chassours.

NEWLYWEDS TIED IN CHAIRS AT SIDE OF ROAD BY FRIENDS

Sign Over Heads Attracts Attention of Autoists to Kirkwood Couple, Married One Week.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ladly, tied and bound to chairs, sat at the side of the Kirkwood road in front of their home in Kirkwood from 1 to 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, while the attention of passing automobilists was called to their plight by a sign, "Newlyweds," over their heads and a string of old shoes suspended between the chairs. To better assure attention, a crowd of picknickers acted as "ballyhoos."

The durance was involuntary. Friends had given a picnic in celebration of the completion of the first week of their married life and as a practical joke they were "tushed" and tied in the chairs.

Physician and Educator Succumbs After Four Years' Illness.

SHOOTING SUSPECT IS REARRESTED IN BOSTON

"Blackie" Gilbreath Held by Police on Story of Friends of Andrew Heidinger.

Benjamin Gilbreath Jr., 24 years old, 3722 French avenue, who left St. Louis last Tuesday after enlistment as a fireman in the Merchant Marine, was ordered rearrested at Boston yesterday after two eyewitnesses to the fatal shooting of Andrew Heidinger, 633 Hickory street, had identified his photograph as that of the man known as "Blackie," whom they said they had seen shoot Heidinger in an automobile at Seventh street and Chicago avenue early on the morning of June 3.

Gilbreath was arrested Saturday when policemen were told that Heidinger had whispered the name "Blackie Gilbreath" to his wife, Mrs. Agnes Heidinger, a few minutes before he died at the city hospital last Tuesday, but the Circuit Attorney's office did not consider the evidence sufficient on which to bring Gilbreath back to St. Louis, and his release was ordered.

Man and Wife Tell Story. Later detectives found Mr. and Mrs. Carl Turner of 1217 South Sixth street, who say they were in the automobile when Heidinger was shot. When taken to police headquarters the Turners made a written statement in which they stated they were seated in Belcher's Cafe, 517 Market street, shortly after midnight on June 2, when Heidinger and three friends, among them the "Blackie" referred to, entered the winery. Heidinger and his friends joined their table, they say, and invited them to drink. Heidinger insisted on getting a taxi cab in which he and his friends and the Turners drove to a wine garden near Compton avenue and Olive street.

Shortly before 2 a. m., the Turners said, the party left the garden in the machine. When near Ninth street and Chouteau avenue, they said, "Blackie" drew a revolver and fired a shot through the taxi window. "Cut it out and give me that gun," the Turners quoted Heidinger as saying to Blackie.

Shoe in Abdomen. "I'll give it to you," they say "Blackie" replied, and, pointing the revolver at Heidinger, shot him in the abdomen. After the shooting, they said, "Blackie" and his companions jumped from the machine and ran away.

Turner said that he and his wife took Heidinger home and told the latter's wife Mrs. Agnes Heidinger, that her husband had been shot by "Blackie."

"Blackie" must be crazy. He's my best friend," Heidinger remarked to his wife at the time. Gilbreath, the police learned, enlisted in the Merchant Marine at noon on the day Heidinger died at the city hospital. He was sent to East Boston to take an examination. Officers were preparing today to go to Boston for him on the statement of Assistant Circuit Attorney Baer that he would issue an information against Gilbreath on the statement of the Turners.

BRITISH COAL COMMISSION REPORT FOR NATIONALIZATION

Three Recommendations for Legislation to That Effect. While Owners Object.

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, June 23.—Four reports of the Coal Commission, which has been considering the question of nationalization of British mines, have been published. The main report, signed by Justice Sir John Sankey, recommends immediate legislation for acquisition of mines and royalties for the state, also immediate application of local administration of the mines through local district and national mining councils, and legislation for acquiring mines after the plan has been worked for three years, with just compensation for owners. It is recommended that coal control be continued for three years.

The report of the miners' representatives generally agrees with that of Justice Sankey, but objects to provisions that would require the men to sign a contract not to combine to cease work until a question in dispute has been before appropriate councils.

The owners' report argues that any form of nationalization would be detrimental to development of the industry and the economic life of the country.

The fourth report, written by Sir Arthur Drickham, recommends state acquisition of the entire mineral rights of Great Britain, and the establishment of a ministry of mines with representation for labor on the directorate.

YOUNG WOMAN AND 350 QUARTS OF WINE HELD

Department of Justice Agents Capture $17,500 Worth of Champagne in Dry Dallas.

DALLAS, Tex., June 23.—Night life in Dallas received a severe jolt this week when agents of the Department of Justice captured three trunks filled to the lid with champagne and landed the young woman who is said to own the trunks and the wine behind the bars. Miss Fay Nowlin is the young woman arrested. She is charged with bringing intoxicating liquors into a dry district. The value of the three trunks of champagne was placed at $17,500.

There were 350 full quarts of the liquid and it is alleged that this has been selling at $50 per quart. It is alleged that Miss Nowlin left the city a few days ago for the North. Department of Justice agents took up the trail. They found that 350 quarts of the booze had been purchased, packed in three trunks, and shipped to Dallas. That was sufficient. When the stuff reached here it was confiscated and the young woman arrested. Those who are familiar with the situation declare the champagne cost the young woman about $7 per quart.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles, that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always uphold the rights of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news, always be drastically independent, never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

JOSEPH PULITZER,
April 10, 1907.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

UNEMPLOYMENT BREEDS BOLSHEVISM.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

For reasons of importance the writer of the following letter is withholding his name for publication until his studies have been completed. Mr. Brown, the Federal Director of the State of Missouri, is very anxious to have this letter made public through the press.

F. E. TURIN,
U. S. Employment Service.

Hon. James W. Good, Chairman House Committee on Appropriations, House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.
My Dear Sir: As the result of my experiences of the past few months, I find myself greatly interested in the question of the future of the U. S. Employment Service as now being considered by you and your committee.

I am an employer of labor. In order to get the viewpoint of the country's workers, I have been working as a laborer under an alias in several plants and factories. My observations to date seem to me pertinent to the question now before you. In a word, they are this: The difference between Americanism and Bolshevism is the difference between having a job and not having one. To an extent which no one can conceive who has not himself walked the streets for work, the axle on which the whole world turns for the working man is the job.

To be strong of mind and body, willing to work and work hard, to walk and walk and ask and entreat and find no work "nowhere," to have the curses of those who are less hopeful than you because they've walked longer, and to see your purse making a thinner and thinner wall between you and horses, and hollow-chested humbugs—that is enough to make the most reasonable man's faith in his country and its institutions—all of them. This fact is well known to the radical agitators in the United States. They know, therefore, that the only way to get them to work is to get them to work. They know, therefore, that the only way to get them to work is to get them to work.

As you know, of course, thousands of employers are devising methods of improving working conditions in their plants, many of them instituting shop committees, profit-sharing, etc. These are all good things. But they are all frosting on the cake! The whole thing starts with the job. That is what holds the whole thing together.

The biggest single piece of insurance against Bolshevism that this country can think about just now is a nation-wide organization for bringing 100 per cent of the jobs available into connection with the men who need them for their daily bread and butter.

This connection is not made efficiently or even fairly when workers have to go to the so-called fee agencies. Jobs need workers as much as workers need jobs. No citizen should have to buy a chance to work. It is both unfair to the worker and it is highly dangerous for the whole country to put the matter back on the old basis where 50 men wait outside a factory gate for every five jobs. Last winter, with 60 or 70 negroes and foreigners, I did my share of shivering while a labor foreman was to appear in order to pick not more than three or four out of us. As we watched the gate, nobody said a word; it was too serious a matter; besides, each of us was competing with 49 others. But after three or four had been picked, you should have heard the curses!

"This is a hell of a note! I have walked this hell of a city and stopped at every place, and there isn't a work-a-tall! What the hell is a fellow going to do?" Then would follow long discussions as to who was to blame—the Democrats or the Republicans—and I have heard good long arguments about it on both. I have also been in the national employment offices, where skilled and semi-skilled jobs were offered me in large numbers, and where men by the scores were being sent out to "labor jobs"—leaving still other scores to wait their turn. I remember one fellow who, after standing in line for hours, stepped out for five minutes and then came back to find that he had just missed being taken on. I shall never forget the anguish of his curse.

Just what changes or what new organization is required to make it permanently possible for a man to know how to find what jobs there are is not for me to say. But I am perfectly sure that the country will make a tragic mistake to abandon the present machinery before it is able to set up something better in its place. There are few things which would please the Bolshevist organizers more at this particular moment.

Very truly yours,

More Houses Needed.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I am a soldier's wife who broke up housekeeping, gave up my home to let him go to war. He was over there a year, now he is back and we have no place to rent. The ones that didn't have to go or give up anything have the comforts of all. I think the State of Missouri ought to see that more houses are built, that the boys that did their bit have some place to live.

A SOLDIER'S WIFE.

PEACE AND THE COVENANT.

Germany will sign the peace treaty. The National Assembly voted for acceptance and Premier Bauer announced the Government's decision with a few mental reservations concerning the question of the guilt of the German people, which do not stop peace making.

The only obstacle to peace is a group of Republican leaders with one Democratic adherent. Former Attorney-General Wickersham, in an able and convincing argument, warns the Republicans not to be misled into the fatal mistake of defeating the league of nations and delaying peace by a few Senators "blinded by passion and resentment against the President and his administration."

These are plain words from an eminent Republican leader, and they strike the heart of the bitter and venomous partisanship which has characterized the opposition leadership. Mr. Wickersham with 27 other leading Republicans, including ex-Senator Burton of Ohio, signs an earnest appeal to Republican Senators to assure peace and save their party by supporting the peace covenant.

The opposition, which has brought forth some spectacular stunts of animosity and malignity, is rapidly crumbling. The Knox resolution has been abandoned. It not only failed miserably of its purpose to kill the covenant of peace, but it created the dangerous chance of blocking the last ditch Senate minority by overwhelming defeat. Chairman Hays is camping in Washington trying to bring order out of chaos and to save the Republican party from a monstrous blunder and disaster. To this end ex-Senator Root, acting as political and legal counsel of the party, suggests a few reservations touching article 10, the Monroe Doctrine and the right to withdraw from the league, which the Senate may adopt without barring or delaying the ratification of the peace treaty and covenant. Mr. Wickersham shows clearly that Mr. Root's objections to the covenant have been met in the revised document, but the Root plan offers an easy way by which the Republican leaders may crawl out of the hole into which they have stumbled.

It is evident that the Republican Senate leaders cannot make opposition to the league of nations a partisan policy. Too many Republicans are against this sordid and destructive scheme. It is evident that these passion-blinded leaders dare not commit their party to a course which will threaten the destruction of all prospects of peace and the fruits of victory.

Peace is in the hearts of men. They are desperately longing for peace and not only peace but the covenant of peace, which embodies an earnest effort of the nations to substitute right for wrong, reason for might, law for banditry in international dealings. Mankind eagerly seeks an end, not only of the chaos and misery which the world war has brought, but of all war and its horrors.

Woe to those who stand in the way of this advance to a higher civilization and who strive to deny that hope of justice and liberty and permanent peace which has sprung from the blood, sacrifice and suffering of millions.

SPURIOS VERSENKT.

The sinking of the German ships by their officers and crews was the happiest solution of a vexatious problem. It may have been a breach of the armistice and an "act of war," but Entente statesmen will magnanimously forgive the offense. They would probably be glad to pin an iron cross on the breast of each doughty sinker except that such a ceremony would savor too much of jubilation.

But what gloomy thoughts must harass and bedevil the solitude of the prisoner at Amerongen as he ponders the Scape Flow denouement! Vanished forever the "belaured young fleet!" That dream of a "place in the sun" has been made a grisly mockery by an act which might be called naval suicide.

Spurius Versenkt.

WE NOMINATE SHERMAN

The Senate of the United States may be delinquent in some of its obligations, but nobody can honestly accuse it of ignoring the consequences that will befall the world as soon as the League of Nations is a going concern.

Senator Sherman of Illinois is the latest member of that august body to gaze into the crystal ball. And he has seen something none of the others even suspected. He perceives that as soon as the covenant is adopted the sphere will be under the control of the Vatican. The advice which Von Hindenburg used to hand out in the me-and-Gott era has been followed by the Illinois savant, namely, "Look at the map." The map informs Sherman that the Catholic nations in the League's membership will outnumber the Protestant nations, with the result that Rome will be in first place. No further proof is needed, but if it were the Senator from Illinois could produce it. He reminds us that the Pope favors the League. Then, too, there is that interview President Wilson had with the head of the Catholic Church. Other folks may imagine that that was just a call of courtesy, but Senator Sherman is not so easily gulled.

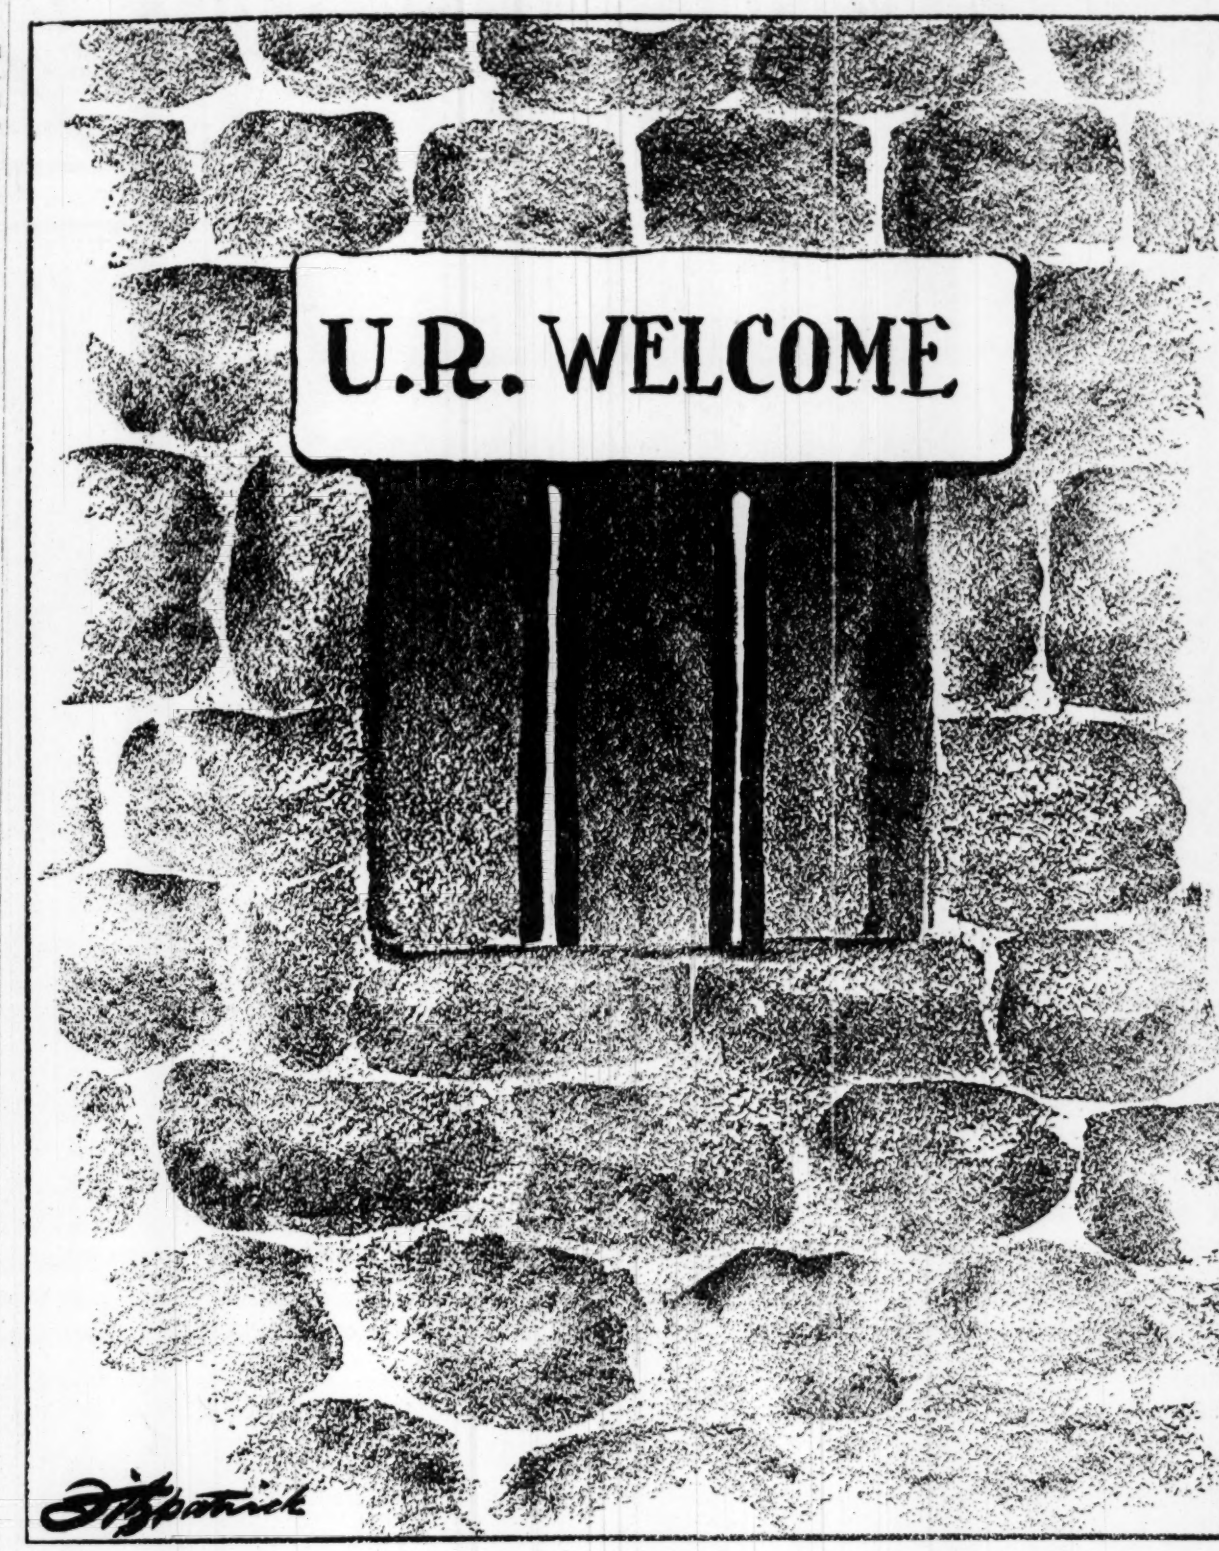

It should be remembered, though, that other Senators have their own notions about what will happen once the nations are leagued. Our own Missouri Reed was pretty well convinced for a time that the undertaking was a diabolical scheme on the part of perfidious Albion to grab the scepter. Reed has since kicked John Bull out of the car and placed a grinning Liberator at the wheel. Borah, however, continues to sing Britannia Rule the Earth. If the League ever gets squarely on its feet the Star-Spangled Banner will be seen no more. Cricket will be our national game, we'll be drinking tea at 5 o'clock every afternoon, and instead of yelling "Kill the empire!" we'll be shouting "God save the King." So deposes Borah.

But Hiram Johnson has another version. Hiram strides into the symposium with the Mikado tucked under his arm and informs his esteemed contemporaries that Los Angeles will be a mere suburb of Tokio if the Senate should ever be so pusillanimous as to ratify the treaty in its present form or approve any other suggestion of Woodrow Wilson's.

No discussion of this subject would be complete without a reference to Henry Cabot Lodge. The scholarly statesman from Massachusetts declines to place anybody on the throne that William Hohenzollern essayed to mount, but he does behold the Monroe Doctrine bleeding at every pore and he drops a tear or two on the late Constitution of the ex-United States, unless the covenant is repudiated.

There may be a difference of opinion as to which one of those senatorial seers should be awarded the cap and bells. Our candidate is that peerless Pierrot of the planet, Lawrence V. Sherman.

That amiable bandit, Robin Hood, might learn some new tricks of the trade if he would attend a few of the United Railways receivership hearings.

THE MIRROR OF PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to reproduce without bias the latest comment by the leading publicists, newspapers and periodicals on the questions of the day.

SUNDAY NEWSPAPER A NECESSITY.

From the Columbus Dispatch.

IN discussions recently concerning the Sunday newspaper—a religious organization having proposed a resolution to oppose the Sunday paper—one of the ministers cautioned the assembly against taking radical action upon this matter. "Let us be sensible about this paper," he said. "The Sunday newspaper is just as necessary as the Sunday trolley, which you attempted to condemn several years ago." He went on to show that the necessity of the Sunday paper had been amply demonstrated during the war.

The one thing which many people fail to recognize is the fact that the Sunday newspaper is made Saturday night and not on Sunday. There would be more logic in opposing the Monday morning paper than in opposing the Sunday morning paper, if one were thinking only of preventing the paper from being imported from the outside. It has not been possible to make the community see the ordinary immorality of some of our big corporations. Either the community is blind on that side or it is too much in mesh with those invisible gears by means of which such concerns are driven. However, this safekeeping matter is different. I think the people can see it. Here we have a big, ambitious community, all bound together in some way by the bonds of local patriotism. We want to do something for St. Louis. Very well. We discover that safekeeping is being imported from Chicago. Wholly aside from the moral aspects of this revelation, aren't we mad about that on the score of St. Louis first and the rest nowhere? If we aren't we ought to be. Does anyone believe this to have been designed as a compliment to St. Louis, presumably without safekeeping? I think not. It is a slap in the face, and if we do not resent it the other big cities will laugh at us.

CAUSE OF THE HIGH COST OF LIVING.

ALEXANDER DANA NOTES IN "The Financial Situation" of the July Scribner.

WITH the economic solidarity of the civilized world today, all countries must in some way be affected in their own position by such unheard-of paper inflation as has occurred since 1914 in Europe. Yet it is possible to mislead entirely through laying too much stress on that single influence as the cause for the present high prices in America.

A very much readier explanation lies in Europe's exhausted stock of merchandise; in her consequent abnormal demand on our surplus of production; in transportation rates higher by 50 or 100 per cent than they were before the war; in a "labor cost" in every branch of production, increase since 1914 in only a slightly lesser ratio. When, moreover, after all the hesitancy since November, orders from home consumers had by the close of May reached such volume as to cause the mercantile agencies to report that trade revival had already in some directions "assumed boom characteristics," when the largest inland mercantile house described advance sales by its agents as "nearly double those of a year ago," and when one week's record of checks drawn on all the country's banks broke all weekly records in the country's history, it was clear enough that the rising stock market of the 10 or 12 preceding weeks had been forecasting.

JUST A MINUTE

ON THE BORDER.

WHERE the waters of the Rio Grande meet the sea, And sink into the sand; In crystal air, that bends the jeweled dome of night, Lies the ancient Ciudad Juarez.

Upon a hill, With stuccoed walls and gleaming tiles, As symbols of their faith and skill, Who bulled there A venerable mission stands.

Its ample roof A refuge gave from creatures of the wild; And thru the centuries its bell hath tolled For weary age and the careless child.

And scars of war, Defile its sacred walls, Which the cannon's thunder invades, While the cannon's thunder falls.

And just beyond the river, night and day, Paces El Paso del Norte, A sentry, young and vigilant; While, thru the rumbling of the storm, Opportunity keeps close, Nor lags at war's alarm.

NELLIE McKEON.

One of our readers says he sat in the rain through a performance of "Robin Hood" at Forest Park, and he thinks well of it. The impression of being outdoors he found greatly heightened. Sherwood Forest, with the rain gently pattering among the trees, was a complete illusion. "I don't care to attend any performance with its locale outdoors except when it is raining, after this," he writes. "It was not raining hard, there was the faintest imaginable mist in the air—one of those mists which seem to envisage imagination—and the acoustics were the most remarkable I have ever experienced. You know water is a great conductor of sound, and there was enough moisture in the air to conduct perfectly every note. Come some misty night and learn something about it."

THE EARTH MOTHER.

O, earth is very dear, for it is wrought Of all that human was: its bosom is A myriad, myriad children; it is men, And women fair, unnumbered, not a speck But lived, and loved, and lives in us again.

I know a graveyard near it lies along A little hillside, clad with sturdy oaks, White stones peep through the trees and beckon me.

But there are countless graveyards, everywhere, And where you see them not, be assured They're there abroad, a sacred heritage, And new or ancient, every grave yields flowers.

Oh, earth is very old, and very dear, And though heaven claim me, in my reference to making the ministry of eternal years, Methinks that, earth-bound, I shall stay awhile.

A child in the great loving mother's lap. H. M. WILLIAMS.

Then he said: "Of course you killed him. Young man, there are a lot of people who can snuff a candle at 30 paces with a revolver, but there are damned few of them who can do it when the candle is shooting back at them."

Sir: Your protest against sending to Chicago for safekeepers to the exclusion of local talent sounds as clear and ringing a note in local patriotism as I have heard in years. How can we expect to develop an active and efficient safekeeping colony in St. Louis if we are to send out over its head whenever there is an important commission and bring in safekeepers from the outside? It has not been possible to make the community see the ordinary immorality of some of our big corporations. Either the community is blind on that side or it is too much in mesh with those invisible gears by means of which such concerns are driven. However, this safekeeping matter is different. I think the people can see it. Here we have a big, ambitious community, all bound together in some way by the bonds of local patriotism. We want to do something for St. Louis. Very well. Belgian Children Shout Welcome to President on His Visit to Torn Country

Scholars Pay Tribute to Wilson at the Ruined Walls of the Library of University of Louvain.

By HERBERT BAYARD SPOPE.

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

BRUSSELS, June 19, via Paris, June 21.—Not in the marble halls of the Chamber of Deputies, nor in the stately Hotel de Ville, nor yet in the Palace of King Albert, did President Wilson's visit to Belgium reach its culmination.

That came when he stood under the shell-shattered, fire-wrecked walls of the library of the University of Louvain, with the blue sky showing through the gaunt beams on which the splendid Gothic roof once rested, and received the tribute of scholars upon whose innocent heads and cloistered homes German ruthlessness had been visited in an irreparable manner.

The skeleton of what had once been a rich storehouse of learning brought home to his scholarly soul a picture which he admitted he had never been able truly to visualize; and after he had been presented with the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws, his voice in responding was surcharged with the emotion he felt as he stood with his wife and daughter, together with the King and Queen, amid the ruins of what had been, and still remains, one of the world's oldest centers of culture, which had withstood the savagery of another sort of philosophy.

Belgian Children Contribute.

The second day of President Wilson's visit was marked by a program almost impossible of accomplishment but which, however, he mastered, and by so doing gained experience of value and, incidentally, a far warmer reception than he had received on the first day. To that the Belgian children contributed. Their voices shrilled a welcome at Charleroi, at Mons, at Valenciennes, and in the Brussels streets, too, cries of "Vive Amerique!" rang from morning until evening.

Their elders were more reserved, although enthusiastic compared to the repressed demonstration of the preceding day.

President Wilson paid to Belgium two compliments during his last day and those who know how unready he is with pleasantries will understand the real value to be placed upon them. The first came when, in the Chamber of Deputies, he announced that as a tribute to Belgian bravery that had made the world's debtors, he proposed to raise the American Ministry at Brussels to the rank of an Embassy.

The second compliment was more personal, and which was made at 11 o'clock at night, when, as he bade good-by to King Albert, he pressed his hand and invited him to visit America. It was an empty speech, for President Wilson had received a genuine affection for the monarch whose simplicity and magnetism attract all who meet him. Just the King proved the most active host. President Wilson was met, for, except while the President slept, he was always under the King's immediate care, as were Mrs. Wilson and Miss Wilson, under the Queen's.

the most touching and his receipts at the city hall the most beautiful. There were tears in the eyes of the churchman as he welcomed his visitor to his home, and the two men spoke earnestly for 10 minutes, after which the Cardinal unaffectedly gave a personal greeting to each of those with the President. The entrance to the city hall was made through the Place Grand, where before the ancient guild halls which are among the finest examples of Gothic art, he was greeted by choral societies.

President Expert on Dress.

The President has become an expert on dress. Early in the day he wore a cutaway coat, then changed to a frock coat and at night to an evening suit. Hereafter he has usually contented himself with a cutaway for affairs in the afternoon. Mrs. Wilson in the afternoon wore a black silk gown with a blue cape and a gray tulle hat. In the evening she wore a white frock, while Miss Wilson had on green and, in the afternoon, she wore black and orange. The Queen who is attractive and slender, had on a white cloth suit and at dinner she wore white again, her hair being topped by a diamond tiara.

Throughout the President's visit King Albert wore the same series uniform of khaki-colored cloth. He is retiring, almost bashful, one might say, and never did he step into the center of the stage. The King was quick in applause and listened carefully to the President's speech in the Chamber of Deputies, which was largely of value and, incidentally, a far warmer reception than he had received on the first day. LOMBIAN MISSION HERE TO BUY MILITARY SUPPLIES

ators Say Imports Are Bringing American Dollar's Value Back to Normal.

The American dollar, which dur-the war dropped to 86 cents in lombia, South America, will shortly return to normal in the opinion of members of the Lombian mission, no are in St. Louis today. The pp was occasioned, they say, by a heavy excess during the war of lombia's exports over imports.
ich is now being counterbalanced an increase in imports.

Members of the mission are Gener Gomez, secretary to the Minister of War, Capt. Carlos Padilla, at-ache, and Ramirez, chief of the adviser. Their stay in St. Louis, leto said, was contingent on the urchase of $100,000 worth of carriage machinery from the Western rridge Co., near Alton, which will utilized by Colombia in making own ammunition. Shoes, uniforms and automobile trucks also will be purchased in large quantities.
leto said, adding that the impression should not be gained that such urchases forebode trouble.

"We have not had a war in Colom-
," he said, "for 30 years. The last war was so bitter that it taught the ople not to fight except as a last ort. Colombians favor the league nations, I think, provided that all nations are given adequate presentation. They look to Pres-nt Wilson to obtain that for them.
lombians think he is a great man, wonderful man."

Colombia, according to Prieto, has vogue a system of universal mil-ary service under which youths who ave attained a certain age serve one year in the army and then return to vian life. He said the supplies re to be used in fitting the army ement. The mission is at Hotel atter.

First to Benefit From Fund for Dependents.

The Associate Bankers of St. Louis, an organization composed of 23 banks located outside of the downtown district, have subscribed a fund of $10,000 to be invested for the support of dependents of policemen who are killed or injured in the protection of member banks. The families of Patrolman Ward, who was killed by the bandits who robbed
the Meramec Trust Co. and Serg.
Smith, permanently blinded by a bullet in the head, will be the first to ceive the benefits of the new fund.
According to a letter to President anor of the Board of Police Commissioners, from Victor T. Moberly, secretary of the organization.

The fund was raised at a special eting of the association, at which resolution recommending the recognition of the policemen who participated in the capture of the Mer-amec Trust Co. bandits by promotion was passed, according to the ommunication. The officers named ere Lieut. Smith, Capt. Singleton, ert. O'Brien, and Patrolmen Mc-ey, Weld and Vailor. The manner in which the $10,000 is to be vested is to be decided by a committee named for that purpose.

During the first five months of 1919, the Post-Dispatch printed 24,773 ale Help Wanted ads, 4717 more

Fashions at the Capital

The Well-Dressed Woman of Smart Society—What She Wears, the Time and the Place.

By Margaret Wade.

WASHINGTON, June 23.
THE art of good dressing knows neither latitude nor longitude, according to the careful observers of Washington, where smartly attired women from every part of the country are to be met daily in the corridor of Congress, at the country clubs and at the succession of dinner parties which continues to claim the attention of society, despite the condition of graver things.

The members' gallery of the house, Mrs. Frank B. Kellogg of Minnesota, Mrs. Joseph B. Randall of Washington, Mrs. James Wadsworth of New York and Mrs. Miles McGuire of New Jersey are among the women who follow the fashion of the day with the intelligent one expects to find in family of the lawmakers of the land, each dressing according to individual fancy and all dressing

according to the accepted standard of the most fashionable models. Mrs. Kellogg is probably the most famous woman of the senate-corridor. That is at present, the say Mrs. Peter Golet will claim this distinction when her return from Paris, as it is well known her great desire to go abroad has been to purchase clothes for the Newport season, and incidentally for use in Washington next year, as well as in the immediate future.

HE maximum of style and comfort is achieved by Mrs. Kellogg in a skirt of invisible plaid so it would seem black except by contrast to the snappy little black jacket with which it is worn. A dainty piece of white muslin trimmed with narrow little frills that finish the sleeve and the long sleeves and head trimmed black faced in a la Germette and trimmed in a small pointed spray of soft plumage. A string of ivory beads somewhat plain and of graduated falling to the waist line and a doekin gloves are details of becoming toilet of the Lady from Minnesota.

la Freinhuugen is also partial to the skirt and coat suit of different harmonizing cloth—with her skirt in plaid and her jacket straight cutless model open at the throat. This is topped by a broad-brimmed ribbon made hat with hazy crown.

la Foindester usually wears a hat but very well cut coat suit black serge and when the temperature of the gallery reaches an unbearable degree removes her coat, showing the freshest of blouses in white. The hat is almost invariably a rough sailor trimmed in plain rib-band. In this severe costume la Foindester is a handsome as as distinguished figure and devoted loyalty to the cause of equal rights and other progressive ideas and of the genuinely womanly aim to be met in Washington of the day.

MRS. RANDSELL is also notable as a supporter of women's suffrage but unlike her neighbor la Foindester is a lady given to wearing frills. A dark blue gown vestee and cuffs of white net over transparent hat trimmed in of paradise is a favorite costume of this genuinely popular and gracious matron.
La Foindester's first is obviously Mrs.
Randell's idea. Sometimes she appears in the daintiest of muslin usually showing considerable leg, sometimes in a coat suit with a coat suit with sports hat.

PARTICULARLY smart afternoon gown at one of the fashionable weddings of the past of the Senator from Oklahoma.

The conservative lines with of medium width and rather trailing almost to the ankles all over pattern in long random lines in chalk white beads holds gown in the straight and narrow lines of the day, while a soft of mauve intertwined with lines of blue, crimson and green the French coloring that season indorses. The hat worn this was a black net in tiny covering a medium round shape a wreath of flowers, reproducing the blue and crimson of the girdle at the base of the well-proportioned crown. Black slippers with the exact shade of the gown worn with this.
In the same occasion Miss Ruth Shook, daughter of the Senator from Nebraska, wore a particularly smart demi toilet of pink taffeta with narrow skirt and pointed sleeves and very dainty draped bodice with long close sleeves. The hat worn with this was openwork ecru trimmed in pink roses.

VERY interesting young matron, quite unspotted by the turn of the limelight in army who is awaiting the return of her husband, with Mrs. Barker, ker, and Mrs. Read are

CAFETERIA INVADES PARIS

American Institution—Trays and Everything—Being Opened.

PARIS business women are to have a real American cafeteria.
As far as is known, it will be the first in France.

The cafeteria is to be in a building recently leased by the American Women War Workers in the heart of Paris. With the restaurant, the building will combine living quarters, clubrooms, a gymnasium, even a "movie" machine and exhibition room.

There is nothing like it in France.
It is a direct outgrowth of one of the first clubs which the women opened in Paris in the early war days for French working girls. The old club, known as the "Vivier oyer," has a membership of 1500, utterly overflowing the tiny rooms of its original home and necessitating
the move to new quarters.

Miss Marguerite Jones of New York City, who directed the original foyer, will move with her "girls" to the new home. It will be open within a few weeks.

"So many French girls and women have been left absolutely alone through the loss of their men in the war, they need more than ever before lodgings that are also a home to them," Miss Jones said. "The first day I told my girls that there would be lodgings in the new building, six of them applied for rooms and each one of the six was entirely alone in Paris and dependent upon her own earnings through the loss of one or more in her family."

"Such homes as this one are common in America, but they are absolutely unknown in Paris. Gymnasiums, clubrooms, homey lodgings and expensive restaurants were introduced as emergency war measures to meet the needs of the great masses of women turned into industry by the war."

PARIS, June 9.—One of the proofs that Paris is once more coming into her own is the crowded "Bois."
Among the lovely toilettes seen yesterday during the "Promenade Hour" was this smart cape of navy gabardine lined with terra-cotta silk. Terracotta fringe peeped fascinatingly from a loose panel at the back, and there was a fringed dress of the same color to match.

Should We Save Daylight?

Plenses the Capitalist.

Daylight Savings Editor, Post-Dispatch.
King Henry of England, when paying court to Katherine of France asked "Do you love me, Kate?" and she answered, "I cannot tell." And the King replied, "Can any of your neighbors tell?"

Can any of the numerous subscribers of the Post-Dispatch, or any of their neighbors tell why such an inane, senseless, frivolous, stupid and nonsensical law was ever placed on the statute books?

Were it not a serious matter to so many, it would certainly be a cause for merriment, and I can only account for this legislation by agreeing with the statement of Carlyle that it is possible for a whole nation to go mad.

Listen to these daylight agitators and their absurd arguments. "The farmers are benefited by this stat-ment is a falsehood. The men who work in the factories are in favor of the same." Also a willful misstatement.

They tell us that it enables the factory workers after their day's work is done, to take wife and children, after packing their lunch basket with "delicatessen" to his to some resort where free from the turmoil of life they rest content.

I am a citizen of Oshkosh, Wis., and for many years I have seen the factory workers returning from their daily toil, and believe me, they have neither money nor inclination to visit this Arcadia after struggling all day through the valley of Getsemane.

Again, it is a hardship on the small children, as we all know that your requires more sleep than old age. The wives and mothers are deprived of one hour's rest in the cool of the evening, and will any of these "daylight-saving fiends" deny that the citizens of St. Louis find it almost impossible to sleep until the grandfather clock heralds the approach of midnight. Recaptulation —the farmers won't have it, the workers don't want it, the children decri it, and the wives condemn and curse it. We are all praying for this "travesty." Oh, yes, pardon me, the capitalist, who retires when he pleases, who, arising at any old time, wanders down to his club, and sitting in a Morris chair, drinking Manhattan cocktails, informs his cronies that the daylight-saving law is a jewel of rare worth.

Do these potentates think that we are all members of a kindergarten class? When Diogenes, the Grecian philosopher, was asked whom he was looking for, he replied, "An honest man." So, America is looking for honest and fair-minded lawmakers.
From time immemorial the burdens of life have rested on the shoulders of the poor, but as hope springs eternal, we will hope for the best.

The old adage that truth is fore-ever on the scaffold, while wrong is forever on the throne, is an axiom and I am sorry to say indigenous to this corrupt world. We are all praying for the time when man's inhumanity to man will be eliminated, and man's humanity will reign supreme.

When this consummation, so devoutly to be wished for, has been accomplished, then and then only will fate have set together her "intricate mosaic."

The Sandman Story for Tonight

By MRS. F. A. WALKER.

Old Brown's Luck.

IT was a warm, bright October morning in the country. The trees were golden and red, and the children were on their way to school for the first time.

"Mary, bring in that old brown chair; I need it to stand the jars on," while I fill them," said Mrs. Manning, as she took the big preserving kettle off the fire.

Mary dragged in from the shed a stout, carved, but very dusty chair, which looked so dirty and dingy that it could not be told from old iron. Sill of every kind clung to its legs and arms, yet underneath there were traces of delicate vines and graceful leaves, which had been carved on it long ago. It was wiped roughly and the jars deposited on its broken seat.

The afternoon a steady rain set in, and it poured for hours. The kitchen was quiet, the children taking a nap and the cook, Mary, busy in her own room. In one corner the tall clock stood loudly.

"My gracious!" said a pretty, new china bowl, in which stood a pile of golden pears, ready for preserving.
"What in the world made Mrs. Manning bring that dirty, dilapidated old chair from the shed into my room?"

The Kettle, said nothing, only boiled and bumped its lid noisily up and down, but the silver on the side table rattled in anger.

"It is a shame to put such trash in the same room with us," the Coffee-urn grunted. "Such rubbish ought to be kept in its place."

"I would like to see a broken dirty chair in my room," said the Kettle, "giggled the Silver Sugar Bowl."
"I wonder at a lady of her taste doing such a thing."

"Well, you need not waste your time in wondering," bubbled the Kettle. "You folks with a little silver on your outside make me weary; you are so snobbish. I do believe that if you were melted down you would be mostly tin. I would rather be an honest, hard-working iron pot than a silly pretense for something like you. Nothing but sins and talk and a bit of shine that soon wears off. Nothing solid and real; nothing that will wear."

On top of a cupboard nearby the Solid Silver Teapot stood in stately dignity. It said not a word, but knowing that real worth did not talk about itself, it spoke quietly, to try to stop the fuss. So the kitchen things quieted down.

There was a sudden noise of wheels, and a buggy dashed up the drive. From it leaped a man in a big rubber coat. He was a friend of Mr. Manning, and came into the kitchen as one of the family. In a moment he noticed the old chair.

He dragged it out to the light and felt it carefully, then getting a part of hot water and strong soap, he washed it till it stood forth clean and fair, every line showing clearly.

"Mrs. Manning," he cried in surprise, "that is one of the finest specimens of old, rare mahogany I have ever met, and I have some grand pieces in my collection. By the time it is thoroughly cleaned and rubbed up it will shine like a mirror. The CHAPTER XXX Continued.

"SHE told me so!" And the tortured young man choked. "She said—just once!" She said, "I'd like to have seen him—just once!"
She meant to tell him good-by!

That's what she meant! And you put this on me, too; you put this responsibility on me! But I tell you, and I told Uncle George, that the responsibility isn't all mine! If you were so sure I was wrong all the time—when I took her away and when I turned Morgan out—if you were so sure, what did you let me do it for? You and Uncle George she loved! You people, both of you, weren't you? You were older than I, and if you were so sure you were wiser than I, why did you just stand around and let me do as I pleased? You could have stopped it if it was wrong, couldn't you?"

Fanny shook her head. "No," she said. "I couldn't. Nobody could have stopped you. You were too strong, and—"

"And what?" he demanded loudly.
"And she loved you—too well!"

George's mouth was hard, then his lower lip began to move convulsively, and he set his teeth upon it, but could not check its frantic twitching.

He ran out of the room. He plunged into his mother's room, but no sound came to Fanny's ears after the sharp closing of the door; and presently she rose, and stepped out into the hall—but could hear nothing. The heavy black walnut door of Isabel's room, as Fanny usually became once more absorbed upon it, seemed to become darker and vaguer; the polished wood took the distant ceiling light, at the end of the hall, in dim reflections which became mysterious; and to Fanny's disturbed mind the single sharp point of light on the bronze doorknob was like a continuous sharp cry in the stillness of night.

What interview was sealed away from human eye and ear within the lonely darkness on the other side of that door—in that darkness where Isabel's own special chair were, and her own special books, and the two great walnut wardrobes filled with her dresses and wraps? What tragic argument might be there grain and colorings are exquisite. I

Spanish work, and must have one day belonged to royalty—see the crests on the panels. I will give you right now $500, and you have it shipped at once. My, but that is a beautiful specimen!"

The man and Mrs. Manning walked out and left the kitchen astonished. The old solid silver Tea-set smiled. The Chair quivered with joy that it was once more to be shining, pretty and to be honored, while the silly things which had been boasting were silent. But the humble Kettle bubbled its lid up and down noisily in its delight—for it hated snobs.

Former Democratic Can-

Witness in Seaman Receivership Suit, Repeats Charge

Caplan Announces He Will Put Finn on Stand—Electrical Expert Questions Company's Figures.

Dr. John H. Simon, who was Democratic nominee for Mayor in 1917, and who was defeated when he sought the nomination in the primary in 1917, was presented as a witness today before Special Master Lamm, in the Seaman suit against the United Railways Co. and its directors, for a receivership and an accounting.
Ephraim Caplan, counsel for Seaman, introduced Dr. Simon in the endeavor to bring into the testimony his story, previously told, of an offer of money to him in 1913 by a United Railways employe, professing to represent the management. Dr. Simon has also told previously of a talk which he had with Bruce Cameron, superintendent of transportation, before the 1917 primary, in which the city's attitude toward the United Railways was mentioned.
Dr. Simon said he had lived in St.
Louis 50 years, and told of being nominated for Mayor in 1913. Caplan then asked:
"Were you approached by the United Railways offering you money in support of your candidacy?"
"Was offered money."
Theodore Rasmussen, attorney for John H. Simon, one of the defendant directors, objected to this, saying the testimony was not material unless it should be shown that the directors were connected with the offer. Caplan then changed the form of the question.
"Did any United Railways employe offer you money?" he asked.
"Yes," said Dr. Simon. "Billy Finn did." He went on to say that Finn had been in street car work here for about 30 years, and was known to him as a boss or superintendent in the construction department.
Caplan called Assistant Auditor
Evans of the company, and established by him that Finn was a roadmaster for the company in 1913.
Caplan then, because of objections of the defense, withdrew Dr. Simon from the stand until Finn, whom he intended to use as a witness, should arrive.
Judge Lamm remarked, in discussion of Simon's testimony, that he did not wish to hear baseless rumors, and Caplan replied that he intended to show who offered money to Dr. Simon, and who sent him.
Dr. Simon's story of Finn's visit to him, and of a later conference with Cameron, was printed in the form of an interview in the Post-Dispatch of July 13 last.
Dr. Simon's Story.
In this interview, Dr. Simon said that about two weeks before the 1913 election Finn called at his home, 1201 McCausland avenue, one morning before breakfast and asked for a private interview.
He then said, according to Dr.
Simon, "I've brought you something from the Captain," and displayed a roll of bills about two inches in diameter. Dr. Simon said he did not know how much money the package contained or what the demonstrations of the bills were. The late Capt. Robert McCulloch was then president and general manager of the United Railways.
"Why does the Captain want to give me money?" Dr. Simon said he replied. "He doesn't owe me anything."
Finn explained, Simon said, that this was "the Captain's contribution to the Simon campaign fund." The candidate replied that his Campaign Committee had been instructed to accept no corporation money. "Tell the Captain I don't want his money," Simon said he exclaimed to his visitor, who then departed.
Motormen Changed Buttons.
"Up to that time," continued Dr.
Simon, "I had noticed that many motormen and conductors on the Manchester and Market lines were wearing Simon buttons. A number of them were my friends, as each my office by riding on those lines. But a few days later all the Simon buttons had disappeared and were replaced in many instances by Kiel buttons."
Two or three weeks before the primary in March, 1917, when Dr.
Simon again sought the Democratic nomination, he said a friend of his who is prominent in the Democratic party and whose name he declined to give, suggested that he had better go see Bruce Cameron.
"Those people think you are hot fire to them," the friend said, meaning the friends of the city.
